Volunteer Teachers Help Polio Patients

First Cocktail Bar Expected in March

Victoria's first cocktail bars may open for business in the second week in March.

The Liquor Control Board will officially designate the city of Victoria as B.C.'s No. 1 licensing area in advertisements to be published in city newspapers Saturday.

Vancouver, Nanaimo and New Westminster also will be designated as licensing areas.

The liquor board must, by law, give notice that it will consider applications for liquor licenses in ads spaced at least five clear days apart.

That means the second advertisements would appear Thursday, February 4.

After that there is a 30-day waiting period to allow for opposition to new outlets to develop. In that time city council may request a plebiscite or 35 per cent of the city's voters may, by petition, call for a local-option vote.

If city council declines to ask for a plebiscite and if the drys fail to round up 35 per cent of the voters, the liquor board may proceed to deal with license applications on Monday, March 8.

The liquor board wants no unnecessary delay in licensing, so the first licenses probably would be granted promptly after the end of the 30-day waiting period.

A few bars, night clubs, or licensed dining rooms could be in operation by mid-March.

Diesel Derailed By Snowslide

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four crew members were injured Thursday when a CPR Diesel locomotive hit a snowslide in Coquihalla pass and plunged 150 feet down an embankment.

The Diesel, hauling a Kettle Valley line passenger train en route to Medicine Hat, left the rails near Iago, 114 miles east of here.

The passengers escaped injury. None of the cars left the track.

The injured: Engineer W. M. Robertson; fireman Keith Elliott; road engineer foreman James McGowan Jr., and dining car steward William T. Hopkins.

Two Diesel units were pulling the train, the regular Kettle Valley line No. 12 passenger, eastbound.

DIVES INTO SNOW

The first Diesel struck the slide as it rounded a sharp mountain curve and plunged down the embankment into deep snow. The second plunged into the snowslide and was buried to the roof, but only the front trucks left the rails. The crew escaped injury.

Passengers watched while trainmen scrambled down the steep bank to rescue the injured from the first Diesel, resting on its side in more than 20 feet of snow.

A doctor who was a passenger on the train treated the injured, who were taken to Hope, and then to hospital at Chilliwack, 60 miles east of here.

HURTS NOT SERIOUS

The CPR reported that no one was seriously injured. The engineer, firemen and foreman suffered facial and hand cuts, and the steward back injuries.

Robertson, Elliott and Hopkins are Vancouver men. McGowan's home is in Penticton.

Westbound passenger train No. 11 was on the east side of Coquihalla, but was stopped by emergency messages.

The westbound train was diverted through Spence's Bridge to the mainline and continued to Vancouver.

Coquihalla pass, one of the most treacherous in the Coast mountain range, has been the scene of many slides. Two weeks ago the line was closed, snowslides blocking the tracks to a depth of 40 feet.

Is Younger Generation on Way, As Always, to Proverbial Dogs

BY THE JUDGE

For generations every generation has been saying that the younger generation has been going to the dogs.

Along with my generation, the Judge went to the dogs, and now I'm always ranting about this younger generation.

The youngsters have been a favorite whipping boy over the centuries, sometimes with considerable justification. But if each generation has "gone to the dogs" in turn, the state of the nation must now be at a low ebb.

What do you think? This is an open question for all ages and generations. Write to the Judge today on this question:

"Is the younger generation going to the dogs?"

Just to cite one current example, let's look at a recent school board meeting. Here there was some discussion about the advisability of Grade 7 students being in junior high school. The question of these young girls wearing lipstick and becoming modish at such a tender age caused the trustees some concern.

The morals, habits, manners of junior high school and high school students always are a subject of debate.

Let's hear from you teenagers, from parents, from grandparents, aunts and uncles, teachers, philosophers and what-have-you!

Remember there's $37 awaiting in prizes—six daily prizes of $2 and $25 for the letter of the week.

The liquor system still is demanding the Judge's full attention, and nine letters on this subject are printed today on page 2. I will continue to publish the best letters on liquor in the Saturday and Sunday papers. In the Sunday edition, the $25 prize letter will be published.

Then on Tuesday the Judge will switch to the younger generation with the first set of letters on this new subject.

Color Maps Of Province Nearly Gone

Demand for the color maps of British Columbia, distributed by The Daily Colonist, has been so heavy that the available supply of 2,500 has been snapped up in four days.

Only a handful of maps remain in the downtown office and available for mail distribution.

Not one complaint—but hundreds of praising remarks—have been received by the Colonist, which made the maps available as a public service.

More than 7,000 maps have been distributed by the Colonist, using up the total supply in the province.

The Natural Resources Conference is planning to bring the map up to date and print a new supply sometime this year. When this task is completed, the maps again will be available through this paper.

Elderly Men Hurt in Falls

Two elderly men were admitted to hospital with injuries received in separate falls in the city last night.

Albert Ashman, 65, Box 1515, R.R. 3, suffered a head cut which required 20 stitches. He fell through the plate glass door of the Melrose Cafe.

Thomas Cooper, 82, of 119 Superior Street, was taken to St. Joseph's earlier with a cut above his eye. He fell on a city street.

Burn Mayor, Librarian Says

CALGARY (CP) — "Why not burn the mayor instead of the books?" asked Calgary's chief librarian W. R. Castell, commenting on the Victoria "book-burning" issue.

Mr. Castell said the Victoria issue was similar to those which had disturbed U.S. librarians for some time.

"It is not one about which Canadian librarians have been very apprehensive," he said, "because we have believed that Canadians are above book-burning and witch-hunting."

He said Victoria had a fine library, one of which the city could be proud and said "If it comes to a choice between the mayor or the library, I think we can safely leave it to the citizens of Victoria."

Lives Saved By Publicity

VANCOUVER (CP) — Publicity given to the high domestic gas toll in Vancouver was credited with saving the lives of a young mother and her six-month-old son Thursday.

Reve Layton, who became apprehensive when his wife failed to answer the telephone, called police.

Police said a burner was open on the gas stove.

Montreal Slasher Cuts Two Women

MONTREAL (UP) — Police questioned a suspect late Thursday night in the search for the "slasher" who has attacked 13 women in six days.

Two men were picked up, officials said, but one was released after proving he was not in the areas where the razor-wielder slashed his victims' legs.

The second suspect was arrested in the city's theatre district. Police said he was undergoing intense questioning although they found no weapon in his possession.

Authorities believe the slasher may be a convicted rapist. They said several of his victims described him as a "flat-nosed, crazy-looking man" with a maniacal laugh. Several of the women were slashed as they boarded street cars or buses.

The slasher attacked his 12th and 13th victims late Thursday.

May Merkle, 21, told police she was slashed on the back of her right leg in the general area where the suspects were picked up. She was taken to the Montreal General Hospital where 15 stitches were taken to close the wound.

Victim No. 13 was Murielle Cusson, 24. She needed 10 stitches at Notre Dame Hospital to close a gash in her right leg. She said she was on her way home from work when a man leaped from a doorway, scratched her on the left side of her mouth with a "sharp instrument" and cut her leg.

Powder Blast Injures Women

NEWHALL, Calif. (AP)—Sixteen women were injured yesterday, three or four critically, when a blast destroyed part of a building at the Bermite Powder Company.

Mayor's Library Nominee Ousted after Bitter Battle

Move Fails To Bar Murdoch But Wallace Replaces Sinnott

BY RAY BAINES

Incensed at suggestions of book censorship, Ald. Robert Macmillan made an unsuccessful bid yesterday to block Ald. Brent Murdoch's appointment to the library board.

The young alderman waged a single-handed battle against the mayor and a number of procedural technicalities, and did manage to get one of his own nominees, Victoria College vice-principal Robert Wallace, elected in place of one of Mayor Claude Harrison's appointees.

Alderman Macmillan charged that Alderman Murdoch did not have public support in view of the reaction to the book-censorship theories.

"I know of people who would like to serve who are a little more broad-minded," he said.

The mayor called his remark "facetious and thoughtless."

THREAT TO DEMOCRACY

Alderman Macmillan said many persons regarded the whole book-burning idea as a "threat to democracy."

He said that in view of what had happened in the past few days, "Alderman Murdoch is not a proper representative."

Professor Wallace topped a secret council ballot to win over lawyer P. J. Sinnott, originally suggested by the mayor. The other successful candidate was Walter Mosedale, also suggested by the mayor. Alderman Macmillan's second nominee, Rev. Lewis McLean of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, was defeated.

Alderman Murdoch received a vote of confidence from City Council when no other member would accept the nomination as library board council representative.

The ballot was taken at the end of the meeting. Earlier there was an incredibly long and confused wrangle over the nominations. Alderman Macmillan was finally allowed time to leave the council meeting and phone several people he had in mind as nominees.

MULLINER DECLINES

Alderman Macmillan had nominated Ald. Frank Mulliner to oppose Alderman Murdoch but the former declined.

"I suppose I could go through the whole council and they would all decline," Alderman Macmillan said.

"I spent three years overseas fighting the very thing some of the board is standing for,"

he said angrily at one point. "I don't agree with you (the mayor) or Murdoch in your theories."

After council confirmed Alderman Murdoch's appointment, Alderman Macmillan asked that the other appointments be tabled. A motion to go on with nominations passed, however, 7-2. Still trying to get opposition for Mayor Harrison's appointments, Alderman Macmillan nominated Dean P. R. Beattie and charged the mayor with "trying to push this thing through with your high-handed methods."

INSULT TO COUNCIL

Mayor Harrison said his remark was "very rude" and "an insult to this council."

At this point Alderman Murdoch, himself now having been confirmed as a member of the board, said he didn't object to the other nominations being delayed for a time to allow Alderman Macmillan time to phone those he had in mind.

At the end of the meeting Alderman Macmillan returned with the names of Professor Wallace and Mr. McLean. He withdrew Mr. Beattie's name after the Christ Church Cathedral dean had declined because of other commitments.

Charles Foulkes Now Full General

OTTAWA (CP)—Lieut.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, permanent chairman of the Canadian chiefs of staff, has been appointed to the rank of general.

Defense Minister Claxton, announcing the appointment, said General Foulkes is the first officer to be given the rank of general in Canada's armed forces in peacetime.

His appointment "reflects the increased importance Canada's armed forces have assumed throughout the free world and especially within the framework of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization," Mr. Claxton said.

A career soldier, General Foulkes was appointed the first full-time chairman of the chiefs of staff committee in February, 1951, and will continue to serve in that post.

General Foulkes, who had a brilliant record in Germany and Italy during the Second World War, will continue to act as Canada's military representative to NATO. This will be in addition to his duties of co-ordinating inter-service operations and strategy.

A native of England, General Foulkes rose from the rank of brigade major to lieutenant-general between November, 1939, and November, 1944. His wife and son lived in Victoria during the war. His sister, Mrs. G. A. Davidson, lives at 444 Monterey.

Murdoch Seeks Help of RCMP

Ald. Brent Murdoch said yesterday he favored co-operation between the library board and the RCMP to decide what Victoria Public Library books are subversive.

Confirmed as council representative on the library board (after an attempt to block his appointment had failed) Alderman Murdoch reiterated his previous stand that he opposed "seditious and subversive literature on library shelves."

He said the new board, which takes over February 1, should lay down a policy on subversive books but should not itself choose books for the library.

He said he at no time suggested burning of subversive books.

He also stated he favored a complete review and a hearing on the dismissal of bookmobile director John M. Marshall, recently dismissed by the 1953 board for alleged pro-Communist sympathies.

Legislature May Hear Book-Burning Dispute

BY T. A. MYERS

The question of "subversive" library books probably will come up in the legislature when the house sits next month.

The subject of book-burning has become such a hotly discussed issue that some MLAs are bound to jump on the headline wagon.

At the centre of any discussion in the house probably will be J. Allen Reid, the Social Credit MLA for Salmon Arm who is best known to Victorians for his attack last year on the B.C. school system.

Besides charging that sex was being taught in the classrooms, Mr. Reid at that time said the educational system was riddled with socialist thought.

POINT OUT REDS

Mr. Reid said Thursday he would tell the legislature that public protests against book-burning and against the dismissal of John Marshall "certainly point out the people who have Communist leanings."

That probably would be enough to ignite a new and even hotter controversy than the sex-in-schools battle.

It could develop during the debate in reply to the speech from the throne, but a more likely time would be when the house gets around to discussing grants for public libraries and estimates for the Provincial Library.

So far the government has shown no inclination to comb the 250,000 volumes in the stacks of the Provincial Library for "subversive" books.

But some of the Socred backbenchers may try to prod the government into action.

Victoria's W. N. Chant, for instance, said Thursday "the matter is possibly something that needs to be looked into."

He added, however, that he "wouldn't press the matter too far. Anything along those lines will have to have discrimination. It can be carried too far."

Mrs. Lydia Arsens said she didn't know "whether there's anything subversive in the Provincial Library or not," but that there should be an investigation.

She said "subversive" meant "inciting to revolution."

"Anything subversive shouldn't be on the taxpayers' shelves or in the schools," she said.

NOT AGAINST ALL

She wasn't against all Communist literature, she said.

"Any other literature whether written by Communists or other Russian citizens explaining their philosophy and concepts of Communism has a legitimate place in the Provincial Library and in the schools."

Mrs. Arsens backed Mr. Reid in his 1953 attack on the schools, and probably would be in his corner again in any fight on subversive books.

'Misrepresented,' Mayor Claims

Mayor Claude Harrison yesterday charged the press had misrepresented his views on book censorship but admitted he had said he would burn subversive books.

The statement came during yesterday's city council meeting during a heated argument about the mayor's appointments to the Victoria Public Library Board.

A reference was made to press reports of book-burning, book censorship and Mayor Harrison said:

"Most of the representations in the press are incorrect—it's all nonsense."

At the same time Ald. Brent Murdoch called press reports of the library controversy "propaganda."

"The press has built the case up and is playing right into the hands of our Red friends," he said.

Then Mayor Harrison told council:

"I very often don't deny things which are wrong in the press, but now I will tell you the truth. A man phoned me and said he was a Colonist reporter—I presume he was a Colonist reporter—to ask me my opinion about reports of subversive books on library shelves. I told him I would not be agreeable to taxpayers' money being spent on subversive books. When asked what I would personally do with such books I said I would burn them—that's all. That's what all this nonsense is about.' "

Reds Propose World Parley On Arms Race

BERLIN (AP)—Russia surprised the western Big Three yesterday with a proposal for a world conference this year, including Red China, to deal with the East-West arms race and atomic weapons control.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov agreed to sidetrack temporarily his bid for a Big Five conference seating the Chinese Communists in the spring, then offered a resolution embodying the new proposal for a world parley on disarmament.

The resolution was presented while the three western foreign ministers were again demanding that the Berlin conferees go on to the problems of Germany's unification and Austria's independence.

It would pledge all four "to take measures within the framework of the United Nations to convene in 1954 a world conference on general reduction of armaments with the participation of both the members of the United Nations and the non-member states."

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

MANY people suddenly changed their tune when they learned that majority public opinion was against book-burning.

"I didn't mean it," they cried. "I was misquoted. There's nobody here but us champions of individual liberties."

This is a very handy device that people who deal with newspapers often use. They make a statement. If the statement brings applause, they stand by it. If it brings jeers, they cry "misquoted." That way, they can't go wrong.

Others said they didn't exactly mean to burn the books—just get rid of them. Send them to the electric chair, maybe. Run them through a meat grinder. Make them into tea-cosies. All these methods seem less objectionable than burning somehow—less inclined to rouse public anger.

Others still are holding fast "Destroy Red books," they say.

But who is qualified to judge the books? Presumably, people who have done a lot of reading, and a lot of thinking too. If the matter is left in hands of people like that, no books will be burned. People who have done a lot of reading and thinking usually develop a broad tolerance.

If all books were either Red or White, all good or all bad, censorship would be easy. Unfortunately there is such a mixture of shades in between that no two persons can agree where to draw the dividing line. So the wise man leaves the decision up to the individual. He doesn't have to be extra wise, either. In fact, there should be no need to point all this out. It's the kind of stuff people are supposed to learn quite early in school.

Few of Victoria's anti-book crusaders seem qualified to pass judgment on any kind of books. In fact, when some of them were asked to name the books they considered dangerous, they failed to name a single volume.

My opinion is that they just couldn't remember the title of any book, let alone its politics. I have some sympathy for them. Once or twice I found myself unable to remember the names of any of the courses I was supposed to be studying, let alone their contents. Those were only temporary lapses, naturally. I remembered the names of the courses as soon as I got into the lecture room. I wish I could remember them now. I should have attended more lectures.

However, I didn't go around suggesting that books be destroyed. If by some wild chance I had thought of doing that, I would have made sure I had a written list of the books I wanted destroyed, along with the case against each one.

Maybe we should open a fund to send some of the anti-book people back to school. That would keep them quiet for a while.

None of this should be construed as an attack upon the mayor, who must have read a lot of books in his time. I doubt if he has given this affair much thought. Someone asked him: "What shall we do with Communist books?" and he answered "Burn 'em," in much the same way that the Queen of Hearts said "Off with his head." Mayor Harrison would have made a better case than that during his courtroom days.

Another fact that everybody seems to have forgotten is that books don't burn very well. Mayor Harrison says he could burn them in his furnace. He must have a furnace with good drafts, that's all. I'd like to see him trying to burn them in my fireplace. I have a hard time burning newspapers in that.

You would need some pretty good kindling to set Karl Marx's "Das Kapital" alight. Not only is it one of the dullest books I have ever tried to read (I never did get more than one-quarter the way through it) but it is also one of the heaviest. I suspect that after a couple of hours of lighting matches, "Das Kapital" would still be there, a big, stolid and very dull clinker.

But if it did burn, nobody would ever miss it. So quixiotic are we defenders of literary freedom, however, that we would prefer not to see people trying to burn "Das Kapital." It makes a handy doorstop, for one thing. Also, we hate to see even a book-burner wasting his time.

If these people are so short of fuel, why don't they order some briquettes? They might even get some Prest-O-Logs, if they stand in line early in the morning. But this plan to fill private fuel bins with books at the taxpayers' expense must be treated with the contempt it deserves.

Children Get Action On Removal of Snow

NANAIMO (BUP)—Farmer W. Birkenshaw, who Wednesday deposited his three children in the public works department office and told the government to feed them since it had not cleared the road to his Cedar district farm of snow, had access to his farm yesterday.

A grader cleared the road yesterday morning.

Speak Your Mind on Liquor

Poetic Memories Win

BY THE JUDGE

Ever since the controversy on liquor began, the Judge has been looking for reminiscences on the old saloon days in Victoria. Today a reader, Ernie Sanders of 115 Moss Street, comes up with a recollection of the free lunch in poetry (of a sort) and wins the $2 daily prize.

Eight other honorable mention letters also are printed below today.

Dear Judge,

If you only had a nickel,
enough to buy a beer,
No cause to go hungry, you hadn't that to fear.
You just went into a bar, no matter if a souse;
They'd cut you quite a sandwich, it all was on the house.
And when I say a sandwich,
I mean a sandwich, too,
For believe me, readers, it sure was quite a chew.
I'm not exaggerating, it's the truth I tell you gents,
The meat alone if bought
today would cost you 50 cents.

ERNIE SANDERS,
115 Moss Street.

Dear Judge,

Imagine being able to walk into a restaurant and order: A dozen on the shell, please, with brown bread and butter, red pepper and a bottle of Guiness! Oh my, Oh my! . . . A glass of sherry or port goes much better if a sweet biscuit is nibbled with it. And what's nicer than crackers and cheese with a bottle of beer . . . Folks are going to drink anyhow. So let's be nice and enjoy it in comfort and moderation and govern ourselves accordingly. Cheer oh, this note is making me thirsty.

VETERAN.

(Personally, it's making me both thirsty and hungry. Oh, well, March isn't far away.)

Dear Judge,

In spite of anything anyone might say to the contrary, the consumption of liquor is responsible for most of the unhappy homes in the world.

Think of the large amount of money wasted in the purchase of liquor that could well be spent on milk and other necessary foods for the health of a growing family.

Better for everyone if liquor were made harder to procure instead of easier. I doubt if anyone who takes a drink at all has not at some time overstepped [illegible]

MRS. VICTOR VIRGIN.

(The only argument against this is that if it were harder to obtain, it would be more expensive.)

Dear Judge,

Would Victoria be a better place without liquor? Perhaps, but get a firm grip on yourself—Victoria will never be without liquor! . . . Our new act is good, but we could so easily have copied the Washington State regulations, which are more commonsense and liberal. Outlets there are numerous. Total liquor consumption has decreased.

RUPERT STEPHENS,
Goldstream.

(Victoria has been without liquor all month for the Judge, who has been steadily riding the water wagon.)

Dear Judge,

Liquor should be under drug control instead of restaurants, and labeled poison. It affects the heart and destroys the mind. It takes pride and courtesy out of men and women who drink it. It deceives and makes fools . . .

ROBERT HALBERT,
2814 Parkview Drive.

(Mayor Harrison, too, thinks some of it should be labeled poison.)

Dear Judge,

Fifty years ago were freedom-loving days when our men could take their liquor or leave it, but too many found their enjoyment in taking it, and crime and evil in Victoria were much too prevalent. An average of at least three liquor dispensing establishments could be found in each block of our main streets, most of them offering free lunches. Whisky was 10 cents a glass and drunks were frequently seen on the streets.

There was absolute proof then that the evils and disadvantages of the drinking habit were in direct proportion to the number of outlets. Let us rather hold on to our restrictions, and go forward, not backward.

J. O. WELCH,
2654 Dalhousie Street.

(Freedom-loving days were bad days, this correspondent feels.)

Dear Judge,

Why don't the drys give the B.C. government a chance to test the working of the new coming liquor act?

The majority of the people voted for it. Can you wonder why the drys have ulcers on the stomach.

The drys contend that youth must be protected. Sheer bunk. The forbidden fruit will always be sought by youth.

Dear Judge,

What about our boys fighting for our country? I know three that have fought in Korea and already returned home, after serving three or four years. They were all under 21 when they joined. They're old enough to fight for our country at 17 years but still aren't allowed in beer parlors. I say throw the doors open and there won't be as much sneaking or drunkenness.

At first some will get drunk, sure, but everything takes a little time to get used to.

Salvia Favored As Bedding Plant

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

With the possible exception of the scarlet geraniums, I don't believe there is any other bedding plant that can compete with the various varieties of scarlet salvia (Salvia Splendens) either for brilliance of color or for the long period of flowering.

The popularity of the salvia as a bedding plant has increased considerably during the past few years, and given a reasonable amount of summer sunshine, they put on a display of color in the ornamental beds that can't be touched by any other plant.

In common with most of the popular bedding-out plants, the salvias are easily raised from seed. If you are going to grow your own plants, though, it is absolutely necessary to have plenty of light. A greenhouse, a coldframe, a glassed-in sun porch, or two or three south-facing windows will be required for the bringing along of enough salvia seedlings to furnish an average flower bed.

VARIOUS VARIETIES

Of the various varieties of salvia splendens in cultivation, Pride of Zurich and Scarlet Queen are old favorites. They have one fault, however—the plants vary tremendously in height, and it is difficult to secure the uniformity so necessary in formal bedding with these kinds.

With salvia, the efforts of the plant breeders have been directed along the lines of securing this uniformity in height, as well as an early-flowering habit, and it is possible today to buy seeds which will produce a seed flat full of plants, all of which will grow to just the desired height.

Among these new varieties, one of the best is Fireworks, a plant which starts to bloom when only a few inches high, and keeps up an abundance of bloom all through the summer and fall. The flowers are of an unusually rich and brilliant scarlet, and the foliage is a very dark green, which shows up the flowers extremely well. The plants all grow to a uniform 10 inches in height.

For beds which require a slightly taller plant, salvia St. John's Fire makes a 12-inch plant, very compact and neat, and bearing its brilliant spikes in great abundance. Blaze of Fire is similar, but a little taller, growing to about 16 inches, and is more suitable for larger beds and for clumps in the mixed border.

NOT ALL SCARLET

All the salvias, however, are not scarlet. Salvia Patens bears extra-large flowers of the clearest indigo blue, and quite different in form from the red types, the flowers being broad, tubular, and lipped. Salvia Farinacea Blue Bedder bears long, tall spikes of wedgwood blue, growing about two feet in height, and with delightful silvery foliage.

GERMINATE READILY

Seeds of all these varieties will germinate readily if sown in pots or boxes of sandy soil and placed in a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. If the seeds can be sown during the first half of February, you can have good strong plants ready for setting out in early May, where they will start blooming almost immediately. Give each plant plenty of elbow room to develop, and snip the growing point off while the plants are still young, to induce a stout, bushy shape.

No More Hornblower

LOS ANGELES (AP)—There will be no more of the fanastic adventures of Horatio Hornblower, indomitable British naval officer of fiction about whom more than half a million words have been fashioned by his creator, Cecil Scott Forester.

"There simply is no more Hornblower," Forester said in an interview. "I've used him up. I've filled his life from childhood to old age through the end of the Napoleonic wars."

Forester wrote the first Hornblower story in 1935, and since has done seven novels and one 10-story volume about his best-known character.

Mrs. Lougheed Claims Press Uses Communistic Methods

Mrs. Doris Lougheed, a member of Victoria Public Library board, denied yesterday that she had accused Victoria newspapers of being Communist in the controversy about removing books from Victoria Public Library.

"What I said was that they were using Communistic methods," she stated.

PET SMEAR

"In editorials they have called it McCarthyism. The pet smear of the Communists today is McCarthyism."

(An editorial in The Daily Colonist said: "Unless McCarthyism is to raise its ugly head in Canada, something better than hearsay will be required to support assertions of subversive literature on the shelves of the Victoria Public Library. Canada, in common with other British nations, has followed the open-face method of dealing with books, rather than attempts at repression.")

"Do you mean that everyone who disagrees with the methods of McCarthy is a Communist?" Mrs. Lougheed was asked.

"No, I just said it was the Communists' pet smear."

"Do you agree with McCarthy's methods?"

DOES NOT KNOW

"I don't know what they are. I don't know what McCarthyism is. I'm not in a position to know whether McCarthy is right."

She had looked in the library and found "books which I would consider doubtful."

"What books are they?" she was asked.

"I haven't the names of any of them at all," she said.

"Do you suggest that the library board should decide which books are subversive and which are not?" she was asked.

"No, I don't think the library board could begin to do a job like that. But there must be qualified experts in Canada who can do it. There are ways and means of finding out what are facts and what are not facts.

"I love my country and I love Victoria, and I think it's too bad that not only myself but Mayor Harrison came in for some very unfair criticism.

"This has nothing to do with burning books. It isn't a Hitler tactic. Any public organization, if they are being used to give out Communist propaganda, should be investigated, as long as public money is being used.

"I object to anything that's going to take away my freedom. I don't mind truth being in our library. But I don't want something given to me in the [illegible] truth."

She said the library board had so far taken no action to seek out subversive books, but it was her personal opinion that it should do so.

"In view of all this controversy, an investigation should be made to clarify the facts . . . The people are entitled to know."

"If any subversive books are found, what do you think should be done with them?" she was asked.

"I don't know, as long as they are not placed in the schools."

"Should they be burned?"

"I don't know."

Eisenhower Sees End of Threat

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower predicted Thursday the current "minor" economic "readjustment" will end soon and promised "bold" action if it doesn't.

He told Congress in a special economic message the nation is "marvelously prosperous" and never was in better shape to ward off a business downturn.

[illegible] are some soft spots, notably agriculture. He also noted the "psychological" danger that fear of a business slump might itself promote one.

But he said the "current readjustment seems likely to be brief and self-correcting," particularly if Congress enacts his program for taxation, farm price supports, social security, public works and foreign trade.

Mr. Eisenhower said the nation can be kept on the road between inflation and deflation by three means: Carrying out the moderate recommendations already submitted to Congress; having more drastic "pump-priming" measures ready in case of emergency; and releasing fully "the dynamic forces of our society."

While he saw no possibility they will be needed any time soon, the president said the federal government already has a big shelf of projects which could increase public works [illegible] within a year." He said state and local governments should be offered interest-free federal loans to draw up similar blueprints.

Mr. Eisenhower also said his administration, if necessary, "will not hesitate" to use such fiscal tools as debt management and credit policy, tax revisions or reductions and "other steps that may be necessary."

Royal Couple Sail Saturday

INVERCARGILL, N.Z. (Reuters)—The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh are to spend the last day of their New Zealand visit attending a civic reception, an agricultural show and a sports meet here today.

In the evening, the Queen will bid farewell to New Zealanders in a country-wide broadcast. Saturday she and her husband will board the liner Gothic and sail for Sydney, Australia, the next stop on their 50,000-mile Commonwealth tour.

They have been in New Zealand since December 23, and will spend two months in Australia.

Church bells and thunderous cheers from happy crowds welcomed the couple when they arrived at this business and administrative centre of Southland province Thursday. They drove 140 miles from the city of Dunedin, founded by Scottish settlers, and still strongly Scottish.

It took their car 40 minutes to weave through the crowded Dunedin suburbs on the main highway. The Queen herself often ordered a halt so she could accept flowers from excited children.

Vacationers swarmed up from the beaches along the route to cheer the Queen and the duke. The weather was brilliant and [illegible]

There were brief stops at the small towns of Milton and Balclutha. And the travelers had lunch at Gore where two gold nuggets—mined in the area—were presented to them.

Rescuers Seek Snowbound Group

INDEX, Wash. (UP) — An army snow tractor was on its way to the Cascade Mountains Thursday to rescue a snowbound minister, his wife, their two children and possibly eight or nine other persons.

Six men and an officer were dispatched from Fort Lewis, Wash., last night with a snow tractor. The army rescue squad will attempt to reach the marooned persons today. The group is trapped in the mountains northeast of here.

Sheriff Tom Warnock of Snohomish county identified the minister as the Rev. Cameron Sharpe, who with his wife, operates a resort for children at Garland Springs on the north fork of the Skykomish River.

The public information officer at McChord air force base near Tacoma, Wash., tentatively identified the other snowbound persons as seven or eight Boy Scouts and their scoutmaster.

The air force said it was believed the scout group was from Seattle. However, Seattle Boy Scout officials said they had no knowledge of any troops in the Cascades.

The group has been isolated for nine days by snows 12 feet deep.

Friends of the Sharpes at King's Garden, a religious school in Seattle, were concerned that the isolated group might be very low on food.

New Housing Legislation Approved in 186-2 Vote

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons last night voted 186 to 2 for the principle of the government's new housing legislation.

Two CCF members, Ross Thatcher, Moose Jaw-Lake Centre and Colin Cameron, Nanaimo, voted against the bill when it was given second reading approval in principle.

The bill now goes to the banking and commerce committee for further study.

The vote ended four days of debate in which opposition members criticized various features of the measure. The legislation amends the present National Housing Act to decrease down payments, lengthen mortgage repayment periods and permit banks to enter the mortgage-lending field.

CRITICS ANSWERED

Works Minister Winters, completing the debate, replied to criticisms of many of the 53 members who spoke earlier.

The government, he said, had feared mortgage money would not be available at the rate needed for a high level of home building. It was better to seek new sources of loans from banks rather than by direct government lending.

There was little to fear that home buyers would lose their equity in their homes if mortgages went into default.

A Progressive Conservative member suggested that buyers of homes be allowed to deduct mortgage interest and municipal taxes for income tax purposes. The two moves would encourage home ownership in Canada.

Rodney Adamson, PC-York West, made the suggestions.

Made in Wrong Place

Alexander Speech Hit

LONDON (Reuters)—Labor members of parliament Thursday criticized Defense Minister Earl Alexander for outlining what they called a "new policy of defense" at a Conservative club instead of in parliament.

Alexander told the club Wednesday that the government aims at reducing British military commitments overseas, to enable setting up a mobile strategic reserve at home which could be rushed to any trouble spot on short notice.

Harry Cruickshank, Conservative House leader, said Thursday there was nothing new in Alexander's speech — nothing that has not been said by other members of the government.

Oddity

WHITEFISH, Mont. (AP)—The dog decided he couldn't leave a man out on a night like that.

So Peter Pan, a huge St. Bernard, shared his home with the hitch-hiking stranger overnight. Ordinarily he won't let anyone outside his master's family come near his king-size kennel.

But when the stranded stranger couldn't raise anyone at the home of George Robertson, he crawled in with Peter Pan. He kept warm by cuddling up to the 100-pound animal.

When Robertson looked out his window, he saw the man emerge from the doghouse. The stranger thanked the Robertsons and the dog and went on down the highway.

Coffee Query Not Set

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian combines officials are checking on rising coffee prices but a full-scale investigation has not been ordered.

Justice Minister Carson, the minister in charge of administering legislation outlawing restrictive trade practices, made the statement today in the Commons in reply to a question from Hazen Argue (CCF-Assiniboia).

Mr. Argue noted that the federal trade commission of the United States has launched an investigation and asked if Canada will follow suit.

"We would not authorize a full-scale investigation unless checks we are making indicate this is necessary," Mr. Carson replied.

He said it appears clear one of the main reasons for the price increase has been frost damage to the Brazilian coffee crop. The frost also had damaged plants producing next year's crop.

Power in a Pencil Top

DEMONSTRATION of a midget-sized atomic battery, activated by radiation which is the leftover product of an atomic stockpile, at New York this week points towards a goal which has been the aim of engineers for a long time—compressible, portable electrical energy. While the current induced by the pencil-top sized battery was only strong enough to be demonstrated by radio signals, it nevertheless came from an impressive little midget with a life-expectancy of some 20 years. Portable cells on the same scale if one day developed to the ordinary dimensions of a car battery might light a home, drive an automobile or an airplane, power a light factory or do any one of an innumerable range of chores on a like long-term basis.

It is no wonder that the idea is regarded with interest. Its consummation would indeed mean the discovery of an advance in electrical engineering as revolutionary as all that has taken place in this field from the days of Thomas A. Edison up to the present time. There is no suggestion that midget-power will come soon; or that what may be demonstrated in a laboratory can be put to practical application for a good long while to come. The initial cost of using this leftover by-product of atomic radiation may be beyond even the longest private purse for the present.

What is encouraging, however, is that mankind has had the dream of great power in small compass which can be applied electrically. With that start, the realization must depend on inquiry, ingenuity and persistence until what was one day a laboratory experiment can be repeated without end industrially and domestically through entire continents. Here it is, surely, that atomic energy can one day atone for its introduction to the world as a deadly weapon. Great power in little compass would be as important to mankind as the basic discovery of the wheel as a prime mover.

Disproportionate Increase

SOME light on the causes of today's high costs of home building has been shed by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in its latest quarterly report. Coldly statistical, the survey of cost factors leaves readers of it to draw their own conclusions. No matter from what viewpoint one regards the figures it presents, they scarcely encourage belief in the ability of the new and easier terms for National Housing Act assistance as a complete solution of the problems facing those people who would like to own new homes.

The report shows that from 1949 to July last the consumers' price index, which replaced the old cost-of-living index, advanced less than 16 per cent. It has long been the practice of trade unions to use that index as their basic argument for wage increases. Yet in the period reviewed by CMHC the Canadian average rates of pay for workers in the construction industry increased by 36 per cent, with unskilled workers showing a gain of 38 per cent. In that period also prices for construction materials, chiefly influenced by wage increases in those industries, rose on average by 24 per cent, and in the case of lumber by 28 per cent.

If, as some of the unions are in the habit of contending, a workman's income should be increased so as to enable him to meet rises in the cost of living, surely the percentage wage increases noted by CMHC are out of all proportion to what has taken place in the consumers' price index scale. It is small wonder that the cost of building the average NHA house rose by $600 in the first half of 1953; small wonder that a home which could have been built for $4,500 prior to the war costs closer to $12,000 today; small wonder that there is unemployment in the construction industry at a time of urgent need for new dwellings. The plain fact of the matter is that the average home is being priced beyond the reach of the average income.

Reserve Army Tinkering

THERE is a suggestion that in another effort to pep up the reserve army some of the present units, no matter how historic in their own right, may disappear through merger with other regiments. Not long ago the announcement was made of a special elite reserve force, to be recruited from recently discharged active force men, and presumably this latest idea is an extension of the current search for more recruits.

Defense officials are at a loss to attract enough men to meet the defensive needs of the country. The real remedy, a draft system, is beyond their competence and so long as the government shrinks from this issue so long will the army command be left holding the bag. Thus the almost frantic urge to chop and change in the hope of filling the ranks.

The elite corps to be raised is likely to function only at the expense of ordinary reserve army forces, and the suggested merger of units may have an even greater adverse effect. If Canada were a small close-knit country the situation might be different, recruiting areas could be combined with less chance of upset. As it is, however, in this country reserve regiments are spread all over the Dominion, and the disappearance of any one of them could easily leave a vacuum that would never be filled. If for example the Canadian Scottish Regiment ceased to exist military interest in this area would collapse badly. It may be none too lively at the moment but elimination of the Scottish would be its death knell. The same would hold good for most reserve army units, serving as they do a particular territorial area.

Since they get no help from the politicians who could provide the real cure the army command is not blamed too much for the shifts and turns it devises in an attempt to bolster the military forces, but one doubts that abolition of regiments is any answer to their dilemma.

CENSORSHIP

Sir,—It is written "by their works, so shall we know them." It is hard enough to keep well informed when information is available, without having to contend with a bunch of pyromaniacs being let loose in our library. Apparently these eminent censors are concerned with the writings of a society whose way of thinking does not exactly agree with ours.

Canadians did not agree with the way that Hitler and Mussolini thought, and thousands of Canadians died because of their belief, yet we still carry dozens of books in our library on the subject of Hitler, Mussolini, Nazism, Fascism, et al. A lot of hard words and hot lead passed between English and French Canada, but there is still reference to French Canada to be had. Canada once fought America, but I notice quite a bit of American literature is to be had.

A meeting of all ratepayers of the Greater Victoria area should be held in order to protect their investment of the annual library assessment on their taxes.

T. D. DODDS.

747 Miller Avenue, Victoria, B.C.

CENSORSHIP

Sir,—With regard to the present flurry of activity over the proposed book-burning, could it be that these investigations will lead to an intellectual renaissance in a civic group not generally recognized for scholarly experience or ability? Obviously, before a book can be divorced from its natural home it must be investigated and be found guilty of some social or intellectual sin. May we not therefore expect to see the libraries of Victoria filled with groups of aldermen, Jaycees, councillors, and even that redoubtable giant of literary discernment, the mayor, reliving their academic youth by spending long hours poring over the ancient and contemporary classics and sopping up the wealth of creative and critical knowledge available only in an untampered library? If they did that they might become tolerant of the individual man's opinion and would begin to distrust anyone who forces him to listen to only one side of an argument.

CENSORSHIP

Sir,—The splendid editorial on McCarthyism and book-burning here in Canada will be appreciated by most of your readers.

My own suggeston as to the method of dealing with the so-called subversive literature that is supposed to be on the shelves of our own library, is for a list to be posted each month headed "Communism—Books and articles for and against."

If our citizens are not intelligent enough to pick their own reading from such a list and to form their own conclusions, it does not make very much difference whether they are to be governed by local McCarthy's or by the advocates of Communism.

LINN A. GALE.

P.O. Box 115, Victoria, B.C.

CENSORSHIP

Sir,—I think many people who are not Communists will be disturbed by the news item that there is to be a "clean-up" of subversive pro-Communist books from the Public Library. Who is this board member who has the temerity to tell us what books we shall not read? Is he so ignorant of the fact that humanity's progress is due in a very large measure to what were called subversive ideas?

Jesus with the doctrine of the brotherhood of man against the established religion of the chosen race was introducing subversive ideas for which he was crucified. Socrates was doomed to death for his subversive teaching. Copernicus introduced a subversive idea that the earth was not the centre of the universe for which he and Galileo were persecuted and Bruno burnt at the stake. Charles Darwin was maligned and insulted by religious bigots in Britain when he introduced his great work on evolution.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings"

By TOM TAYLOR

I have learned a bit more about the Esquimalt Legionnaires' desire to stress the memorial aspect of the ice arena. They don't ask much.

All they want is to add the last two notes of "The Last Post"—famous and symbolic farewell—and a roll of the drums to the playing of "O Canada" as featured at hockey games. Only they'd like this ceremony to take place at all special events.

The sequence then would be: lights dimmed, two notes of "Last Post," roll of drums, few bars of "O Canada."

This would be but a small extension of the pageantry of rememberance, adding about fifteen seconds to the present brief ceremony. That shouldn't be too much of a strain on anyone's patriotism.

Saw a headline in a newspaper: "You can't ignore Hemingway." But of course you can, just as one can ignore the alleged subversive literature some people suggest is on the public library shelves. In fact even a book-hound has to give many an author the go-by these days; it's impossible to keep up with the printing presses.

Which brings up the subject of book-burning. There's an old legal tradition that it's better for a guilty murderer to escape than for an innocent man to be hung, and the same goes for books too. Given that the two main formative influences are okay, the home and the school, then library patrons can be trusted to pick their own reading through the exercise of native wit and intelligence.

If the library board is so unwise as to set itself up as a censorship board, it will regret its folly. Would it sit in judgment on every single book that's bought? And what Solomon among them could say where the line is to be drawn?

Remember too that censorship develops its own ego, and egos have a habit of expanding and devouring. One step could easily lead to another, and even unwittingly, right straight to fascism; which is the same authoritarian complaint as communism only in reverse.

A thought struck me when I read about the sumptious Haida village museum that's in the wind, or at least on various tongues. Just wondered who's going to put up the $650,000 to build it. I doubt the City Hall can afford it, and I'll be surprised if James Bay is that much enthusiastic either. The Songhees and other Indian tribes around here must be feeling a bit miffed, by the way. After all the Haidas never belonged to Vancouver Island.

What's the RCN got that other navies don't have? The answer: nylons. Not on a matelot's legs, oh no, not yet anyway. Up on the masts.

Says the Crowsnest: "During the October visit of the Athabaskan to Manilla, visiting naval officers and men spoke admiringly of the ship's equipment and her excellent condition, but when they commented on the nylon ensigns, their quality, smart appearance and evident serviceability, they were downright envious."

In the same journal there's word that a note has come to the dockyard superintendent at Esquimalt, to wit: all men sleeping in bunks should sleep with their heads forward and feet aft. And that bunks should be arranged horizontally.

Sailors are coming in to their own. Only they don't all sleep in bunks—by no means.

East Berlin Shop Windows

By W. N. EWER, from London

CORRESPONDENTS in Berlin have been reporting that for some weeks before the opening of the Four Power meeting a new look had come over the Soviet sector of the city. The shop windows began to show a profusion of things for sale which the East Berliner (unless he crossed into the Western sector) had not seen for long days. There were foreign foods and fruits—grapes and bananas, even French brandy. The prices were high, well above the reach of most Berliners. But still the goods were there, giving at any rate the appearance of a comparative prosperity.

Now this may, to some extent, be figuratively as well as literally "window dressing". The Four-Power conference brings to Berlin more correspondents than have visited it at any time since the war. Most of them will visit the Soviet sector. It is not unimportant that their first impressions shall be favorable. And, since the time of the first Prince Potemkin, who built "villages" of lath and plaster to impress his imperial mistress, the Russians have had a reputation for skill in such matters.

But there is more to it than this. For other things have been happening as well.

A number of factories taken over by the Soviet authorities have been restored to the East Germans. The drain or reparations has been stopped. Food, though not plentiful, is not so scarce as had been anticipated. There must have been considerable imports. And, since the East German government has at present only limited resources with which to pay for them, it must have had Soviet economic aid. It is probable that this is one of the reasons why the Soviet government has been selling for foreign currency some of its jealously hoarded gold stocks.

For the Soviet Union (itself suffering from shortage of food and consumer goods) to help East Germany in this way there must be some reason more compelling than the mere wish to make a favorable impression on a lot of foreign newspapermen. It seems clear that the Soviet government is trying, even at some cost to the Soviet economy, to placate the East Germans and to lessen the unpopularity of the East German government.

Nor is it surprising that Soviet policy in Germany has gone through several phases. In the months immediately after the war Moscow, misled, not for the first time, by its own dogmas, seems to have believed that it could build in the Soviet Zone a "people's state" which would ensure the prosperity and win the ardent loyalty of the masses. At the same time, West Germany would collapse economically. The West German workers would hate the Western occupying powers and would rally to the Communist Party. They would respond to the call for "unity" which was raised in the east. And the emergence of a united Germany under Communist control and leadership would follow inevitably.

You have only to look back at German Communist writings and speeches of that period to see that this is a true picture of what the Communists then hoped for, and believed to be an "historical necessity". This was the "historical mission of the East German Socialist Unity Party".

But the blueprints went wrong. It was West Germany which, with the help of the Western allies, began to recover; while in East Germany, mainly as the consequence of Communist follies and of Russian extortion, there was no recovery but a steady deterioration. Communism in West Germany made no headway, but declined rapidly; while in the East the Communists were winning not the loyalty but the detestation of the masses.

The revolts of last June were the conclusive shock. It had been made plain, to even the most optimistic Communist, that a reunited and free Germany would be a Germany in which the Communist Party and its leaders would have neither power nor influence. Reunion, instead of winning the West, would lose the East for Communism.

The deduction was obvious. The Communists must still pose as the champions of national unity; for that must be the basis of their appeal to the neutralist and ex-Nazi elements from which they have, not without some success, been looking for support. But in one way or another reunion must, at any rate for the present, be prevented. The Soviet Zone must not be allowed to merge itself in a democratic Germany. It must be held for Communism, in the hope that one day the tide will turn—as Communist theory demands that it must.

But if the Soviet Zone is to be held, its shaken political structure and its shaken economy must both, if possible, be stabilized. The "organs of government" must be strengthened, and any actual active expression of discontent firmly suppressed. But at the same time, steps must be taken to try to allay discontent, and that in an economic situation in thorough confusion.

The Communist regime must have economic aid from outside if it is not to be in danger of collapsing. And that aid is now at last being given. Some of it from Russia itself, some, under Russian compulsion, from the satellite states. Whether it will suffice, whether the situation, allowed to deteriorate for so long, can now be stabilized, remains to be seen. But this, I feel sure, is the real significance of the "new look" in the shops of East Berlin.

Good Deed to Canada

(From The Montreal Gazette)

ADMITTEDLY some things are not right in Canada. It is amply obvious also that quite a number of those deficiencies are to be found in our approach to the problem of leading youth into the paths of good citizenship. This being the case, it is both gratifying and reassuring to note the words of Mr. R. C. Stevenson, vice-president of the Canadian General Council of the Boy Scouts Association, on his return from a coast-to-coast survey.

Placing the number of Canadian Cubs, Scouts, Rovers and leaders at more than 157,000, Mr. Stevenson forecasts a "record year of progress" for 1954. Furthermore, he declares: "From my observations, I am convinced that the quality of Scouting in Canada has improved, due largely to the training courses for leaders."

The record of the Boy Scout movement has been such as to indicate the wise selection and good training of leaders over a considerable period of time. If improvement is being made in a situation already so impressive, it is highly to the credit of the movement and an excellent augury for the future.

Doubtless the status of Canadian Scouting was a consideration in the choice of Canada as the country in which to hold the World Jamboree in 1955.

Victoria, Double-C

(From The Winnipeg Free Press)

FEW people, at this stage of our development, are likely to quarrel too violently with the expression of a healthy Canadian nationalism. But what is to be made of a descriptive paragraph in Le Progress du Saguenay, a daily published in Chicoutimi, which reproduces a photograph of the modernized frigate, Lauzon, noting below that her commander hails from Chemainus "en Colombe Canadienne?"

Purely from the standpoint of the proprieties, would it not be well to consult the people of British Columbia before thus changing the name of their province? There may be others who would welcome some slight preparation before being overwhelmed by this novel mode of speech, however accurate it may be. "B.C." falls trippingly from the tongue; its potential successor sounds like a holdover from the alphabetical days of the Roosevelt era. Fancy telling the neighbors that you are leaving to spend a vacation in Victoria, Double-C.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

IN THREE motion pictures lately a principal character was an author. In one he was a tall, handsome blade of a man. In another, he was a trim, bearded gentleman who lived in modernistic splendor in an apartment that would have cost $1,000 a month to rent in any city. In the third picture, the part of an author was portrayed by a character actor who succeeded in making of his man a charming, witty, most lovable personality.

Well, now: the only good-looking author I ever say in my life was good-looking in the sense of a businessman, an executive. By good-looking, I mean he was clean, tidy and his features were average. That is Thomas Costain. But on the other side of the ledger we have a pretty fearsome collection: old Somerset Maugham is far from a beauty; Sinclair Lewis might have got a bit part in a movie, but it wouldn't have been as an author; Hemingway, handsome in a large, loose fashion when young, took to growing Sikh beards about 10 years ago; Mickey Spillane looks like one of his favorite characters; and so on through the list of the best sellers. Maybe some of the less successful authors are good-looking enough to get into a movie. But it would never do for me to be casting director in movies, for my immediate conception of an author is one of those dark dampish bald types, with a slightly squashed visage, of dumpy stature and untidy dress, and of a dogmatic and argumentative disposition which reveals itself in his bearing as well as in his features. Women authors as a rule are just as disappointing.

Why should this be so? Simply because authors come out of the rank and file of humanity. And the rank and file of humanity are a pretty undistinguished looking lot. In the movies, there appears to be no harm in a banker or a plumber or a storekeeper being an unromantic character. Indeed, for the sake of art and realism, they often do pick a pretty average person to play such a part.

But authors always get special casting, even though the part is minor. Let me tell you that movie authors look no more like the real thing than movie heroes and heroines look like the heroes and heroines of real life.

Island Relaxing As Winter Retreats

Lower Vancouver Island started taking the wraps off yesterday as the low-temperature winter weather started to retreat before warm southerly winds.

Threat of major flooding in certain low-lying areas up-Island [illegible] the weatherman said that gradual thawing would take place in the next few days.

Victoria's temperature climbed to a respectable 45 yesterday and weatherman William Mackie predicts a similar high today.

Virtually all the snow and slush melted away from city streets.

At Nanaimo a mild southeasterly breeze and bright sunshine bathed the city in an atmosphere of true spring but the picture was spoiled by hundreds of downtown cars tossing and bumping down the main street on the worst roads seen in years.

Overnight temperatures went to 33 permitting a slow runoff of water on most of the main streets.

All points between Duncan and Campbell River reported freezing temperatures overnight and brilliant sunshine yesterday.

In the Saanich district public works crews are nearing the end of their work of clearing secondary and side roads.

VANCOUVER (CP) — W. L. Inglis, manager of International Airport here, said Wednesday he expected operating profits to jump by more than $35,000 this year over 1953. His annual statement predicted 1954 expenditures of $209,063 and revenue of $338,000.

H. Bottrell Heads Oak Bay Liberals

Oak Bay Liberals last night chose Hugh E. Bottrell, lawyer, to head their association.

He was unanimous choice at the well-attended annual meeting held in Liberal headquarters on Government Street.

Muriel Johnston was elected secretary; Harold Johnson, treasurer; and Margaret McClung, vice-president.

NEW DIRECTORS

New directors are Tom Carney, Gilbert Smith, J. Ross-Jones, Jr., Margaret Dickson, [illegible] Ed. Mallek, Major McKeand, Colin Langthorne, Jack A. Sparks, Mrs. G. Worthington-Lake, Ronald J. Grant, Captain F. G. Hart, and Jack Ruttan.

Guest speaker Archie Gibbs, MLA, reiterated the Liberal members' stand on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

Liberals, he said, favored a road from Squamish to Vancouver rather than extension of the PGE.

"We are inclined to think a road is the answer," he said.

He thought a first-class highway could be built for $5,000,000. Cost of railway extension is $20,000,000, he said.

Extension of the PGE into the Peace River would result in freight from that district going to Prince George and then by CNR to Prince Rupert, he thought.

"We believe a special committee should be appointed to sift the facts and call in experts before any action on the PGE is taken by the legislature," he said.

In attacking comparisons of road construction costs recently released by Premier Bennett, Mr. Gibbs said: "Mr. Bennett gave figures obviously picked at random and didn't in my opinion give a fair comparison.

"We have asked for an inquiry into road construction costs from the beginning of 1951 to date, so that the people will receive adequate comparisons and full explanations," he said.

Street Midway Turned Down

City council yesterday turned down a request from the Junior Chamber of Commerce to use part of Blanshard Street for a B.C. Prdoucts Fair midway.

City solicitor Arthur Patton ruled that it was illegal to use streets for the purpose.

At the same time, Greater Victoria Celebrations Association president Frank Hunter said the B.C. Products Fair was "encroaching" on his organization's territory by holding their fair two weeks before the 24th of May, the time for the annual celebrations.

He said the May queen, car raffle and midway were activities which used to be handled by the celebrations association.

Several members of council suggested that the two groups work together.

Jaycees' Activities Challenged

Victoria's Junior Chamber of Commerce was challenged yesterday to disclose on "whose authority they set themselves up as an un-American activities committee."

Elgin Neish, Fishermen's Union official, who demanded that the Junior Chamber give an answer, was commenting on a report in Thursday's Colonist which stated that it had led the fight against Communism in Victoria.

"I feel that if they have any evidence that people are acting against the laws of the country they should place such information in the hands of the police," he said.

QUESTIONS RIGHT

"Who are they to investigate individuals and then come to a decision that they are Communists or people working to the detriment of the country?" asked Mr. Neish. "What right have they to take it upon themselves the job of trying and sentencing by loss of employment?"

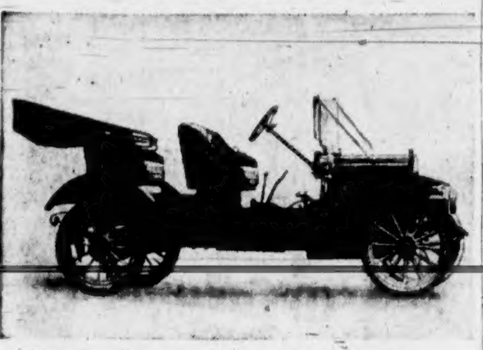
First of Famous Line



First Canadian agency named by Studebaker was Jameson Motors Ltd., and this original Studebaker model, above, was the first of its line to grace Victoria's early-day streets.

Popular British Cars

Jameson Motors First Rootes Unit

When the Rootes group of British automobile firms was formed in 1936, the first distributors they appointed on the North American continent were the Victoria firm of Jameson Motors Ltd.

Jameson Motors have been handling the Rootes products since then and are the sole distributors for Vancouver Island.

The group includes the popular Hillman Minx, the various Humber models, the Sunbeam-Talbot, the Rover, the Landrover and the Commer vans.

PARTS RECEIVED

Even during the war when Rootes group's main endeavor was to keep Britain supplied with fighting planes, the firm of Jameson continued to receive a never-failing supply of spare parts.

When the war was over, Rootes turned their attention seriously to Canada, and in 1948 Rootes Motors (Canada) Ltd., was formed with a $3,000,000 plant at Scarborough, Ont.

Sales of British cars soared and the Hillman Minx was among the best sellers.

TAILOR MADE

Jameson Motors sold many of them on Vancouver Island, for as general manager Jock Watson points out, they are "tailor made for Canadian roads."

When the new Jameson Motors display and service premises open this week on the corner of Broughton and Blanshard, the old building farther down Broughton Street will be given over wholly to the display of Rootes group cars.

Two Buildings in Use

Automotive Service Expanded by Firm

With its new service reception building on Blanshard and its main service building on Broughton, Jameson Motors now have the largest floor space devoted to automotive service of any firm on Vancouver Island.

One entire floor of the main building is devoted to a fully-equipped paint and body shop; another floor handles major repairs and overhauls; and a third floor is set aside for tune-ups, electrical work and minor repairs.

In the new service building much new service equipment from U.S. and Britain has been installed, and all departments in the new and old buildings are linked with an inter-com. system.

Court Orders Payment Of Back Wages

A. C. Bystedt, 3 Alma Place, was ordered to pay back wages of $96 and was fined $25 in Saanich police court yesterday when he pleaded guilty to not paying an employee twice monthly during September, 1953.

P. R. Carswell, 3580 Cedar Hill, was fined $25 for failing to have an insurance liability card for her automobile on January 15.

Many of Motor Firm's Employees Have Long Records of Service

One of the facts of which Jameson Motors Ltd., is rather proud as it celebrates its 40th anniversary is the long service record of the people who have worked for the firm.

Today more than half of the present employees—36 in number—have been with Jameson Motors for more than 25 years.

The present shop foreman, Elmer Watson, was indeed an original employee when the late R. J. Jameson founded the firm in 1914.

Just behind him in 1916 came Jock Watson, the present general manager and George Motion the service superintendent. E. S. Diespecker, the service manager joined the firm in 1922.

"We have always had a happy family at Jamesons," said Mr. Watson.

Although various changes in the direction of the firm have been made during the years, R. J. Jameson was proprietor until his death in 1937, and his wife, now Mrs. H. Scarth, is president of the company.

Jameson Motors First Company in Canada Appointed Agents for Studebaker Cars

The first automobile agents appointed in Canada by the famous U. S. firm of Studebaker was Jameson Motors Ltd., of Victoria.

Jameson, since their establishment in 1914 have sold Studebaker cars in the Victoria area . . . 40 years of association.

Indeed they have sold or handled every model ever put out by Studebaker, for that firm did not manufacture its first automobile until 1913, just a few months before R. J. Jameson founded the Broughton Street firm.

In celebration of the event D. C. (Gus) Gaskin, president of Studebaker of Canada came to Victoria to present the firm with an Atmos Clock in recognition of the 40 years Jamesons have been selling Studebakers.

The clock, a showpiece in gilt and glass, sits on the desk of the general manager, Jock Watson.

It is the nearest thing to perpetual motion, because it never needs winding and is kept going by change of temperature. A difference of two degrees in the room temperature once a day is sufficient to keep it ticking.

Although it has been making automobiles for only 41 years, Studebaker has just passed its centenary as a firm.

FORMED IN 1853

Studebaker was formed in 1853 and its original purpose was to build the covered wagons of the pioneer days.

The original covered wagon made by Studebaker was called a conestoga, and to mark the centenary, the firm has given that name to its 1954 station wagon.

While Jameson's did not handle the firm's old wagons, traps, buggies, they have kept track with a number of old Studebaker products on the Island.

One of the most famous is a two-wheel doctor's buggy built in 1882. It is owned by Major F. E. Womersley of Albert Head Road and it has a place of honor in his barn at Metchosin.

The buggy, stylish in its lines carries a brass plaque on the back giving its date of manufacture and the Studebaker origin.

Studebaker cars are now manufactured in Hamilton, Ont., and the company has bought 140 acres at Burlington, between Hamilton and Toronto, for future extensions.

The new home of Studebaker in Victoria will be the new Blanshard-Broughton premises of Jameson Motors, Ltd. The Studebakers will be on display here, while the firm's other agencies will continue to be handled at the old premises across the street on Broughton.

Experiments, conducted by biologists from the Department of Natural Resources at Banff Fish Hatchery since 1947 and later in Ontario by biologists from the Lands and Forests Department, in crossing speckled and lake trout have been successful in rearing ponds. Now, all that is left is to see if the new fish will thrive in Canadian lakes. That and the selection of a suitable name.

For lack of something better and in keeping with the modern trend to compound words, the hybrid trout has been called a "splake." It was understandable, of course, that the word "splake" would find immediate disfavor with sportsmen and the hunt is on for something more appropriate.

The Carling Conservation Club is conducting a Dominion-wide contest to find a suitable name for what could become an outstanding game fish. The prize will be a high-grade fly rod, tapered line and automatic reel, which will be illustrated in the February issue of Forest and Outdoors. Entries should be sent to Forest and Outdoors Magazine, 4795 St. Catherine Street W., Montreal 6, Quebec.

First attempts to cross speckled and lake trout began as far back as 1880, when male lake trout were crossed with female speckled trout. The results were unsatisfactory because it resulted in eggs too large to be expelled normally by the smaller parent. However, a reversal of the process, crossing the male speckled with the larger female laker, has been, as far as can be ascertained in hatchery pools.

However, a lot of questions remained to be answered. Hybrids are often sterile and although three-year-old "splake" at Banff showed signs of maturity and prepared to spawn and fish stripped in tests appeared to be fertile, it will be a while yet before definite conclusions can be drawn. Hybrid fish follow the reproductive trend of the male parent and the speckled trout spawn in their third year while the lakers usually reach maturity after 10 or more years. Then, too, speckled trout spawn annually while lake trout in some lakes appear to spawn only every second or third year. And lake trout prefer deep, still water while speckled trout migrate into spring surges or flows. It appears as if the new fish will have its problems deciding what to do.

For those who might want to submit a suitable name or are just interested in any new fish, the "splake" is described as follows:

"The back is dark olive green with numerous pale vermiculations. The sides are bluish silver and the belly white. There are numerous lemon-yellow and pale pink spots along the sides above and below the lateral line. The leading edges of the paired fins and of the small anal fin are white, and the remainder of these fins are pale orange in color, with the pectoral fins being dusky towards the forward edge. The dorsal fin is dark and heavily spotted.

"The tail is truncate as in the speckled trout, but the body is elongated as in the lake trout. The red spots and blue halos common to the speckled trout are absent. Measurements show that the hybrids have a slight leaning towards the characteristics of the female lake trout parent. Ten of 23 measurements and counts favor the lake trout, six the speckled trout side, and nine are intermediate."

With better weather apparently on the way, anglers will probably try to catch up on lost time but fishing prospects are still not too good. Any quick melting of snow will raise river levels but it shouldn't be long before steelheaders are getting some sport . . . Saanich Inlet, however, appears to be having a bad winter season with little of the good grilse fishing of the past three or four years . . . Harry Peard of the Anchorage Boathouse, said yesterday that while only a few boats have been out, results have not been good and there is little sign of fish . . . at the Goldstream end, heavy snow has not only prevented fishing but will keep boat owners busy for a while getting their craft back in tip-top condition . . . Babs Jaggard of Lipsetts reports that the "dark" abalone spoon is again available at many city sporting goods stores. This abalone, which I call dark to differentiate from the light-colored "red-dot" abalone because of lack of a better name, is one of the better grilse and blueback lures. It is manufactured by Jack Gaunt of Cobble Hill. He discontinued manufacture last year but has been persuaded to keep turning out the lure, which was getting a steadily-increasing demand . . . Buttons Heglin and Les Curran, two of the city's most persistent—and least successful—steelheaders, have come up with a new gimmick. They looked increasingly forlorn after each unsuccessful expedition to Cowichan River and Art Hancock finally gave them a 12-pounder to take home. It was their first fish . . . Heglin, incidentally, was seen at the annual meeting of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association without his buttons for the first time since he procured them. He complained about the weather and an acquaintance was heard to remark: "No wonder he's cold. He probably feels undressed without those buttons."

Toronto Promoter Seeks Marciano for Harrison

TORONTO (CP)—A $100,000 guarantee Thursday was offered Rocky Marciano, world heavyweight boxing champion, to fight Tommy Harrison of Los Angeles in Toronto this summer.

The offer was made by Frank Tunney, Toronto boxing promoter in a wire to Marciano's manager, Al Weill.

Harrison scored a 10-round unanimous decision over Earl Walls, Canadian heavyweight titleholder before a record indoor crowd of 14,737 in Maple Leaf Gardens here Tuesday night.

Tunney offered Weill any date between May 15 and late September.

"Harrison scored a tremendous hit here," Tunney said. The crowd paid a record $15,261 at $5.50 top price.

The promoter said the location of the bout would depend on the date chosen.

"If it were in May it would most likely be indoors but it would be outdoors in July or August."

Following the fight Tuesday night Harrison said he would issue a challenge to Marciano in New York Friday.

DOUG HEPBURN

Named Canada's outstanding amateur athlete of 1953 and winner of two polls conducted by Vancouver newspapers for B.C. athlete of the year honors, Doug Hepburn of Vancouver will appear here next Wednesday night to give weightlifting exhibition. Commercial Hockey League officials received confirmation from Vancouver strongman yesterday that he will definitely appear during league's Fan Appreciation Night Wednesday at Memorial Arena. Hepburn will bring own equipment and special platform will be set up on ice.

PAR COMPETITION SET

Annual women's par competition and monthly medal round will be played at the Victoria Golf Club Tuesday.

Knox Defeats Robinson In Main Event

Buddy Knox, who formerly wrestled under the title of a masked marvel, grabbed a best-of-three decision from Claire Robinson in the feature bout of a three-bout card at the Victoria Ballroom last night before an estimated 600 fans.

Knox took the opening fall but Robinson, just back from a tour of the United States, used his deadly drop kick on his opponent to take the second fall.

In the semi-main event, Bud Ruttal took the odd fall of three from Al Fridelle in a bout that ended up outside the ring and had the fans aroused at the finish. A rematch has been scheduled for next week.

Victoria policeman Keith Hollett and Glen Fox battled to a 30-minute draw in the opener.

Tracksters Start Indoor Workouts

Frank Lewis, member of YMCA track and field team, is shown soaring over bar as he takes first crack at high jump this year during opening of winter YMCA track and field workouts last night. Club will train indoors until weather permits practice sessions to be held outdoors. Checking Lewis' form is coach Bruce Humber while other members watch. They are, left to right, back row: Joe Haegert, Harry Mitchell, Cliff Salmond, Bill Gelling and Harry Stephens. Front row: Carroll Butler, Marilyn Wilson, Connie Sampson.

Thursday night scores: New York 3 at Detroit 3, Chicago 2 at Boston 3.

Next games, Saturday: New York at Montreal, Boston at Toronto, Chicago at Detroit.

By The Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings played 50 minutes of fumbling, disorganized hockey Thursday night, then came to life in the final 10 minutes and tied New York Rangers 3-3 in a National Hockey League.

In the night's other contest, Boston Bruins edged Chicago Black Hawks, 3-2, with Fleming Mackell breaking an 18-game scoreless streak by scoring two of the Bruins goals.

FOUR-POINT LEAD

Results moved the Red Wings four points in front of the second-place Montreal Canadiens and enabled Boston to strengthen its hold on fourth place to three points over the Rangers.

Goals by Marty Pavelich and Marcel Pronovost tied the count for the Wings in the late stages of the game at Detroit.

Led by Wally Hergesheimer, who scored twice, the Rangers held a 3-1 lead after two periods. They seemed headed for their second straight victory over the Red Wings at Olympia Stadium, as goalie Johnny Bower was handling everything the Detroiters poured at him.

But his brilliant defense crumbled in the final 10 minutes when Pavelich jumped from the penalty box, took a pass from Gordie Howe and sank a 10-footer. That was at 11.49.

Less than two minutes later, at 13.42, Pronovost split the Ranger defense and converted a pass from Johnny Wilson.

Nick Mickoski opened New York scoring at 1:13, drilling a 35-footer over the glove of Wing's goalie Terry Sawchuck. In the second period, Hergesheimer scored his 21st and 22nd goals of the season. In between these, Dutch Riebel scored on a close-up shot for Detroit's first goal.

Mackell was all-league centre last season, but had scored only five goals this campaign, although he had 20 assists going into the game at Boston.

MACKELL STARTS IT

After the fourth-place Bruins and the last-place Hawks battled through a scoreless first period, Mackell sent Boston ahead midway in the second period. Ed Sandford of the Bruins took an around-the-net pass from teammate Bill Quackenbush and set up Mackell 10 feet in front of goalie Al Rollins.

The Hawks came back to tie the score on Pete Conacher's close-up shot with only 13 seconds left in the second period.

Rookies Lou Jankowski and Ken Wharram helped Conacher on the score, with Wharram making the final pass before Conacher lifted the puck into the far corner past Sugar Jim Henry.

STOLE PUCK

Mackell got his second goal early in the third period after Johnny Peirson stole the puck from Jankowski near the Chicago cage and fed Mackell close in.

Peirson made it 3-1 for Boston halfway through the period after Mackell took the puck at the Hawk blue line. Peirson swept in alone to beat Rollins.

Jankowski pulled Chicago within one goal of a tie late in the game on a break with Conacher and defenseman Al Dewsbury.

Early Lead Not Enough

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—The Dacusville Midgets made good on two free throws to grab an early 2-0 lead in their basketball game with the unbeaten Red Shields.

But the lead didn't stand up. The Red Shields won, 101-2.

Wininger 11 Under Par In Amazing Golf Feat

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UP)—Bo Wininger, one-time Oklahoma City amateur, fired one of the greatest rounds in the annals of professional golf Thursday to take the first-round lead in the $15,000 Palm Springs Invitational Golf Tournament.

Wininger, starting his second year on the pro tour, shot an amazing 11-under-par 61 over the par 72, 6,314-yard Thunderbird Ranch Country Club course to take a two-stroke lead over Dutch Harrison, veteran Oklahoman who is having one of his best years.

HOGAN FOUR BACK

Harrison, who already this year has won first money in the Bing Crosby Pro-Amateur and San Diego Open, fired a 33-30—63. Tied for third place with 65s were Ben Hogan, Peter Thomson of Australia, Chandler Harper and Fred Haas.

Hogan was five under par at the end of nine holes but on the back nine his putting went sour and he missed two three-foot putts and one of only 10 inches, which he said, "was probably the shortest putt I ever missed."

Wininger got the benifit of an arrow-true putter over greens that were so bumpy were complaining. He was that the other professionals really hot on the back nine, going seven under par on the last six holes by getting five birdies and an eagle three on the 507-yard, par five 15th hole.

ONLY 26 PUTTS

All told, he took only 26 putts for the 18 holes and had nine birdies and one eagle.

Wininger canned birdie putts from all over the greens. He had one 10-inch putt, three of two-and-a-half feet each, one of seven, one from ten, one from 12, and one from 15, one from 20, and one from 30 feet, the latter for an eagle.

Bob Garrett Bonus Pick in Pro Football Draft

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—The Cleveland Browns won the bonus pick in the National Football League's draft opening Thursday and promptly chose quarterback Bob Garrett of Stanford as their free choice.

"He was the best man available," coach Paul Brown of Cleveland said. "I don't know whether Otto Graham will play next season, and we could use Garrett to supplement George Ratterman."

Notre Dame's Johnny Lattner, who copped the Maxwell and Heisman awards last year and was everybody's choice for All-America, was passed up by six teams before the Pittsburgh Steelers grabbed him. Lattner was a first round pick, as were his team-mates, tackle Art Hunter, who went to Green Bay, and fullback Neil Worden, who went to Philadelphia Eagles.

Garrett, the prize choice, led the nation's collegiate passers last year, completing 118 of 205 pass attempts for a 57.6 completion average and placing fourth in the nation in total offense.

At Palo Alto, Calif., Garrett said he was "bowled over" by his selection and regarded it as a "wonderful opportunity and a terrific honor." He said he is "definitely accepting" and doesn't anticipate any trouble "working out a contract agreement."

Lattner said he is interested in playing with Pittsburgh but will have to study salary terms. Two Canadian football teams are reported seeking his services.

Lattner said he would confer with a South Bend, Ind., acquaintance, Julius Tucker, who has served as "agent without fee" for other Notre Dame players turning pro.

Last Saturday, Tucker said Ottawa Rough Riders and British Columbia Lions sought to sign Lattner and that the National Football League team which drafted him must "at least match their offers."

The 19th annual draft was completed in record time with the 12 member teams selecting 360 players in 12 hours.

Thursday night's score: Calgary 4 at Saskatoon 5.

Next games, tonight: Edmonton at VICTORIA; New Westminster at Vancouver.

SASKATOON—Defending champion Saskatoon Quakers moved closer to Vancouver and Calgary here Thursday night when a third period goal by Doug Adam gave them a 5-4 Western Hockey League victory over the Stampeders before 3,500 fans.

It was the Quakers' 17th home-ice victory this season and enabled them to move to within six points of the Canucks, who have played three games more, and seven points of the Stampeders, who were blanked by Victoria, 2-0, in their last start.

ROOKIES SET PACE

The rookie line of Aggie Kukolowicz-Vic Howe-Chuck Holdaway sparked the attack, accounting for three of their first four goals. Kukolowicz scored Saskatoon's first and third goals and assisted on the fourth. Howe got a goal and two assists and Holdaway picked up two assists.

Quakers played without acting coach Alex Kaleta, who was unable to dress because of a foot injury. However, they had Ron Murphy, 20-year-old winger from the New York Rangers, in the line-up for for the first time.

SPECIAL PROTECTOR

It was Murphy's first action since suffering a broken jaw in a stick-swinging episode against Berni Geoffrion of Montreal. However, he was wearing a special mask protector on his jaw.

Kukulowicz and Vic Lynn, ex-NHL player, scored the only goals of the first period to give Saskatoon a 2-0 lead. Kukulowicz put the winners into a 3-0 lead but in the space of four minutes and eight seconds, Calgary had tied it up.

Achie Scott, back in action after a recent appendix operation, scored the first of his two goals to start it and Pat Lundy pulled the losers to within one goal two minutes later. Howe restored Quakers' two-goal lead but goals by George Pargeter [illegible] put Stampeders on even terms.

Adams' winner came on a low shot from the right wing, seconds after Stampeders bitterly disputed a breakaway play by Lundy which was called offside.

FLYERS TONIGHT

Tonight at Memorial Arena, Victoria Cougars can pull eight points ahead of the last-place Seattle Bombers and at the same time into a fifth-place tie with Edmonton with a victory over the Flyers.

Edmonton, playing the third game of their third coast tour, haven't won in two starts on Memorial Arena ice this season and hold only one victory in four meetings with Victoria so far.

It will be Victoria's final home game before the club starts its third prairie trip, which opens at Saskatoon Monday. Game time is 8.30 p.m.

Last Americans Bow Out In Quarter-Final Round

SYDNEY, Australia (UP)—America's chances of winning the Australian singles tennis title, handed a severe setback when Tony Trabert was beaten in the second round, were wiped out completely Thursday when Vic Seixas and Ham Richardson bowed out in the quarter finals.

Seixas, the Wimbledon champion, was beaten by Mervyn Rose, 8-6, 9-7, 9-11, 6-4, in a marathon two-hour match, while Ken Rosewall, the defending champion, breezed past Richardson, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5.

Rose now meets Rosewall in one semi-final match while veteran John Bromwich, who ousted Trabert, plays Rex Hartwig in the other. Bromwich had to go five sets before turning back George Worthington, 3-6, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, while Hartwig conquered 17-year-old Ashley Cooper, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

DRAMATIC STRUGGLE

A crowd of 3,000 fans watched the dramatic struggle between Seixas and Rose. The Philadelphian twice held set points in the first set and had three set points in the third set before he could win out.

In the anti-climatic fourth set, a couple of linesmen's calls went against Seixas and when he lost his service in the third game with an unlucky shot which caught the very top of the net, Rose maintained his lead by rushing the net brilliantly.

Meanwhile, Trabert said Thursday that he has written to the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association, suggesting that henceforth the Australian National championships be held either before the Davis Cup challenge round or immediately afterward.

Trabert wrote Col. James Bishop of the USLTA that if the schedule for the Australian championships is unalterable, then Americans "should not be forced to remain out there" after the challenge round.

"I am sorry about what has happened," said Trabert, referring to the series of controversies in which Americans were involved during their tour of Australia. "But I told the colonel the truth about my feelings regarding the whole tour."

Stars' Actions Worry U.S. Tennis Officials

BY GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Top U.S. tennis officials are perturbed as they await the return of their Davis Cup team from its abortive and, in some respects, mysterious trip to Australia. They should be.

They know that, as of now, they and their youthful representatives are in bad odor with the men who run the game in the world's leading tennis country, especially with those Sydney officials who watched their national championships die a horrible death this week because Tony Trabert apparently did not feel like playing.

"I can't understand it—I simply can't think what happened," said Alrick Man Jr., chairman of the U.S. Cup committee, as we discussed Trabert's strange loss to John Bromwich, the semi-retired veteran, almost at the outset of the Sydney tournament.

HARD ON GATE

"It was especially tough on the Australians after their own best player, Lewis Hoad, had withdrawn from the championships to go into the army. I'm afraid it will have a very bad effect on their gate."

What Man could have added is that this loss in receipts will be vividly remembered by the Aussies when the time comes around for them to send their stars to U.S. nationals at Forest Hills next summer. It will not be too surprising if they skip the United States and go straight home from Wimbledon.

As they have not heard from Trabert directly, all our officials know at the moment about Tony's dreamlike defeat is what they have read in the papers. They are especially intrigued by the young champion's explanation, as reported, that Bromwich, who throughout his international career was strictly a baseliner, suddenly rared up and began attacking him in the third set.

DIFFICULT TO IMAGINE

"I can see where that would have upset Tony," mused a member of our ruling staff. "However, I'm afraid I would have to see it with my own eyes. I can't imagine old Brom attacking anybody, can you?" The answer was no.

Our own best guess is that Trabert simply became almighty tired of playing tennis after having been in Australia for two months. He planned originally to play only for the cup, then to return straightaway to be married and resume his studies at Cincinnati University.

Instead, Tony was talked into marrying the beautiful Shauna Wood first and taking his bride along on an extended honeymoon.

Golf—Here's How

BY SAM SNEAD

Notice the long line from the point of the left shoulder down through the centre of the foot. That line emphasizes the straight left side against which you hit. And it emphasizes clearly how the left shoulder rises as the right shoulder lowers during the shoulder pivot of a well-made golf swing. Also notice the reversal of the hip pivot. The hips pivot about half as much as the shoulders. Also notice that his weight is forward permitting the player to swing down against that weight. From this point on the right arm will straighten out on the follow through as the club swings up and over. Notice that although impact has taken place and the ball is away, our player has his eyes still fixed on the spot where the ball was during the address position.

Famous Ground To Be Altered for Olympics

BY WILL GRIMSLEY

MELBOURNE (AP)—The big show of the 1956 Olympics will be staged in the Melbourne Cricket Ground, famous as a scene of many test cricket matches and other international events.

This is a huge brick and concrete oval, located in beautiful park land just a mile from the centre of the city. It will accommodate 120,000 spectators when additional construction is complete.

The cricket ground now holds 85,000. One large stand, about one-fourth of the structure, is to be demolished and replaced by a modern steel and concrete one holding close to 40,000. Most of the stands will be under cover.

START IN APRIL

New work on the arena is scheduled to begin in April and to be completed by September, 1955. Facilities to be provided should be equal to the best of any previous Olympic Games.

The cricket ground is a spacious double-story structure which gives the appearance of being much larger than the Olympic Stadium in Helsinki. Its infield will measure 568 feet by 492 feet.

It will have a 400-metre lap track with seven lanes and a 164-yard straightaway 32 feet wide with eight lanes. There will be plenty of room for field events, jumping and vaulting.

NINE-FOOT SLOPE

At present the infield has a nine-foot slope from east to west, so they are going to tear it up and replace it on the level. The track is laid out to combat shadows and prevailing winds.

Adjacent to the cricket ground on a 25-acre triangle on the north bank of the Yarra River lies Olympic Park which will be remodeled at an expense of more than $1,000,000 to provide other main venues.

These include:

A $670,000 indoor swimming and diving stadium seating 5,000 spectators.

A $250,000 velodrome for hockey and cycling and accommodating 15,200 spectators.

A [illegible] athletic and football field which can take care of 38,000 fans and a smaller field accommodating 20,000. These can be used for track and field workouts and for soccer matches.

Rowing events will be staged on Lake Wendouree at Ballarat, 70 miles from Melbourne, chosen for its fresh, still water and constant depth. The yachters will compete at Port Phillip Bay in Melbourne, a virtually land-locked 725 square miles of water free of reefs, tidal streams and currents.

Other locations include:

Gymnastics and basketball—at the Glaciarium, a skating rink in the centre of the city with 19,000 square feet of floor space, room for two courts.

Wrestling—at Exhibition Building, the largest and one of the most historic buildings in Australia, less than a mile from the city.

Rifle and pistol shooting—at Williamstown rifle range, 10 miles from the centre of the city.

Fencing—at St. Kilda town hall, in a ballroom with huge floor space, seating facilities and dressing rooms.

Boxing—at the Melbourne Boxing Stadium, an indoor arena seating 8,000 where all the city's professional bouts are held now. It is one of the poorest of sites and may be changed.

Pirie 'Saved' For Britain By Paint Firm

LONDON (AP)—A British paint firm today "saved" distance runner Gordon Pirie from having to go to the United States.

Pirie said he has accepted a salesman's job from the paint firm—plus an automobile—and beginning March 1 will have the time he needs to train and prepare for track and field meets. Until then he will keep his job as a suburban bank clerk.

On January 1 Pirie allowed the news to leak that several American colleges had offered him track scholarships and he intended accepting one and moving to the United States, "possibly permanently."

London papers splashed the news. Letters to the editors called for establishment of funds to keep people like Pirie at home.

Highlanders To Compete Next Month

A Scottish indoor meet of Highland dancing and piping events, similar to one held successfully here during the war, will take place at the Crystal Gardens, Friday, February 12.

Heading the list of events will be a quadrille competition which will have a silver challenge trophy and eight individual awards as prizes for the winning team.

A record number of entries from Victoria and many competitors from the Mainland and up-Island points are expected for the Highland events.

Children from eight years of age up to those attending professional classes will compete in traditional costumes of authentic Scottish clan tartans for the many medals and trophies.

The Highland fling, sword dance, shean truibhas, reel o' Tulloch, Irish jig and sailor's hornpipe will be the main events on the dancing program.

How to KEEP FIT after 50

In the old days fifty seemed the signal to slow down—take things easy—watch your diet—get more rest. It's still good advice. But these days you can face fifty with many interesting and active years ahead,—active, that is, if you can avoid backache and the "tired-out" feeling, due to kidney and bladder disorders, that often develop around that age. For more than 60 years Dodd's Kidney Pills have been helping men and women of all ages to keep kidneys and bladder in good order,—helping them to feel better, to work better, and get more fun out of life. If you are approaching fifty, or past it, Dodd's Kidney Pills may help you, too. You can depend on Dodd's. 54

Former Alderman Aubrey Kent Elected Laurier Club President

AUBREY KENT

Liberals must give all their time and efforts so that their goal—that of seeing Liberalism take "its rightful place" in the province—be attained, declared retiring president D. G. Sloan at last night's annual meeting of the Laurier Club.

Former alderman Aubrey Kent was elected unopposed as the new president.

"It might be noted that the Conservative Party — apparently jealous of our efforts — endeavored to form a body somewhat similar to our own and called it . . . the Macdonald-Cartier Club," said Mr. Sloan in his report.

"This can form little concern to us," continued Mr. Sloan, "as judging by the success attending its parent, it won't last long."

Other officials elected, all unopposed on the ballot, were: vice-president, A. J. R. Ash; second vice-president, H. E. Botterell; secretary-treasurer, J. L. Muirhead. Board of directors (two-year term): L. G. Hamilton (Victoria), J. H. Harman [illegible] Bay), L. J. Hobbs (Saanich), J. J. Proudfoot (Victoria), H. R. Stephen (Oak Bay) W. T. Straith, QC (Victoria) and F. E. Winslow (Victoria). (One-year terms) Eric Joe (Victoria), and F. M. McGregor (Victoria).

Japanese SPCA Hits Poison Law

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals trained its big guns Wednesday on a proposed rabies-prevention law to kill off stray dogs by poison spread in parks. "Unrestricted bacteriological warfare" against pets, the society charged. It said the law would lead to "unlimited destruction of animals."

Delegation—225 Strong—Crowds Chamber in Local Option Bid

'Drys' Rebuffed in 7-1 Vote by Council

A delegation of 225 "drys" jammed into the city council chambers yesterday but failed to secure council support for a local option vote.

The council voted 7-1 against a motion to ask the cabinet to hold a local option vote in the Victoria license area. The motion came from Ald. Millard Mooney who was the only one in favor of it.

RALLY BEHIND CHIEF

The 225 members and supporters of the Greater Victoria Citizens Association piled into the council chambers to rally behind their chief Frank Hunter who took time out from his normal city clerk duties to read a lengthy brief in support of local option.

The meeting at one point dissolved into one of the usual arguments over procedure when Mayor Claude Harrison ruled Alderman Mooney's motion should come under "motions" at the end of the agenda.

BURST OF APPLAUSE

A tremendous burst of applause from the crowd incurred the wrath of Mayor Harrison after Mr. Hunter had finished his remarks.

"If there is any more of this sort of thing we will clear the room," the mayor said pounding his gavel. "This is not a theatre."

The mayor originally ruled that as there was not a motion the matter could not be discussed. Council, however, agreed to go ahead and vote on the matter in order to spare the crowd the trouble of waiting for more than an hour until the agenda was through.

Ald. Robert Macmillan challenged the mayor's ruling stating that usually discussion of a matter is concluded immediately after hearing a delegation.

An amendment to table the matter was also defeated. In making the motion, Ald. William Pinfold argued that he and other aldermen had not had an opportunity to study the new liquor legislation.

In his brief Mr. Hunter said the new act "allowed for drastic loosening of restrictions on the liquor traffic.

"The report (the Stevens Report) went far beyond anything warranted by the bare majority gained by the nebulous question voted on by the people in June . . ."

PEOPLE'S DECISION

Mr. Hunter said he was not asking the council to take sides on the liquor question but merely give the people the chance to decide for or against it.

"We contend," the brief stated, "that [illegible] voted 'Yes' at that time not for this loosening of restrictions but as an expression of dissatisfaction with the then existing liquor law."

He said if council declined "we would be faced with the prodigious task of canvassing in winter weather for signatures for a local option petition to the extent of 35 per cent of all the qualified electors, or about 11,350 persons."

In his following remarks Mr. Hunter said the government could allow all four types of outlets which would be "an intolerable situation . . . against the wishes of the people" who had turned down beer parlors here for many years.

Former GVCA president Albert Sullivan spoke briefly, giving some statistics on what was spent in Canada, B.C. and Victoria on liquor. He said it was only "British justice and fair play" to ask for local option.

LETTER READ

Earlier Mayor Claude Harrison read a letter to council in which he urged council to support the government's liquor regulations pertaining to Victoria.

Ald. Brent Murdoch said the act was "a step in the right direction." He charged the GVCA was trying to "cloud the issue" claiming that what they really wanted was a dry Victoria.

Ald. Robert Macmillan said the government had "shirked its duty in passing the local option decision on to municipal councils." He said if the government wanted local options it should have made them mandatory.

Clean-Up of Gorge Sought by Edgelow

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow will start a full-scale investigation into the improvement of the Gorge park and waters.

The alderman has announced he will call a meeting of all interested persons to determine if a clean-up of the Gorge is possible to restore it as a recreation and tourist attraction.

The meeting, to be held in the next two weeks, will include Mayor Claude Harrison, the reeves of other municipalities, representative of the B.C. Electric (which owns the Gorge park), representatives of the Chinese community (with the hope the Chinese may develop an Oriental tea garden in the park), the three local MLAs, federal member Dr. Francis Fairey, deputy health minister Dr. G. F. Amyot and others.

Immediate project, Alderman Edgelow said, would be dredging and diversion of all Gorge area septic tanks into the new Saanich sewer system.

BY ROY PARRETT

Watch your TV screen for news of Victoria's book burning issue. The local controversy is to be televised on two major television networks.

The Columbia Broadcasting Network telephoned cameraman Paul Johnson from New York yesterday for local coverage of the Victoria witch hunt.

Although Paul was already covering the event for the CBC, arrangements were speedily completed by the American network to share the CBC films.

News films of the event were flown east late yesterday. With luck, the hot local issue will be on CBUT's 7 p.m. television news tonight.

Mayor Claude Harrison, Dr. Carron R. Jameson and Ken McAllister, local photographer, made statements on the television film. Views of the Victoria city hall and public library were also included.

The book-burning issue is the first major Victoria news event to be covered by nation-wide television.

Last week's story about a Peeping-Tom camera, which could [illegible] attached to any TV set, brought quite a rash of suggestions.

Most were the kind that can't be put in print.

Perhaps the city fathers should install a few in the library to check on the reading habits of library patrons.

Latest TV device is an electronic memory machine which will soon be on the market. It records your favorite TV shows if you have to go out to earn a living or on some other trivial errand.

The gadget works after the fashion of a tape recorder and can be used to erase the commercials, the manufacturers claim.

The rapid growth of television has produced a few misunderstandings among owners of TV sets. These are only a few actual "howlers" reported to local servicemen:

One customer complained because the actors on TV didn't look at all like her mental picture of the stars she had listened to on radio.

One man, turning his set on earlier than usual, complained that all he could get was "circles."

A lady phoned to say her set wasn't working properly but added that it was to be expected as the cable had a knot in it. (This is a standard TV slide used when things break down.)

One customer sent her new set back to the store "because it had no channel 1."

Legion Plans For Arena Supported

Esquimalt Legion's recommendation that "more fitting" memorial ceremonies should be held at all Memorial arena events was approved at last night's meeting of the Legion's zone council.

A committee was appointed to work in co-operation with the arena committee to study ways of fulfilling the purpose for which the arena was built.

SUGGESTIONS

Esquimalt Legion suggested that the ceremonies should take the form of:

The playing of several notes from "the Last Post" by bugle.

A moment of darkened silence.

A rendition of "O Canada," the lights to become brighter during the singing.

Chairman of the committee is A. H. C. Jones, and the secretary will [illegible] Norman Wharf of the public service branch of the Legion.

Other members will be the presidents or their representatives from Britannia branch, Pro Patria branch and Naval Veteran's branch.

Discuss Liquor Act

Thirty-two hotelmen from all parts of the province met Liquor Control Board officials in Victoria Thursday to get clarification of the new Liquor Act.

The delegation was headed by J. F. Bengert, president of the B.C. Hotelmen's Association.

Meeting Set On Fast Ferry

Chamber of Commerce delegates and members of Victoria city council will meet William Manson, CPR's B.C. vice-president, next Tuesday to discuss the proposed fast all-purpose ferry service from the Saanich Peninsula to Vancouver.

Driver in Chase Found Impaired

—AROUND TOWN—

Sidney Thomas Anderson, 204 Suzanne Place, was fined $250 in Saanich police court yesterday after being found guilty of impaired driving.

Anderson was charged on December 16 after being chased by a city police officer from the intersection of Gorge and Harriet to Gorge and Tillicum when he failed to stop at the officer's command.

Constable R. C. Bentley of the Victoria police said he chased the accused after he failed to stop for a red warning light after passing two cars on the double line on Gorge.

An application to retain his driving license on the promise of posting a $1,000 bond and not to drink any intoxicant for one year was remanded by Magistrate H. C. Hall for one week, pending a probation officer's report.

Burglars stole a cash box containing $83.80 from the offices of the Hoover Cleaner Company, 1056 Fort, overnight Wednesday, police reported.

Store manager Tom Scott, 1309 Arm, told police entry to the building was gained through a transom window. He said the filing cabinet in the front office had been taken into the back of the building, forced open and the cash box taken.

R. G. Thorsen, 2160 McNeill, charged in city police court yesterday with impaired driving, was remanded without plea until February 1 at the request of [illegible] counsel, James J. Proudfoot.

An impromptu early morning concert by a pair of lost sailors was stopped at the request of Victoria West residents yesterday.

Awakened at 5.45 a.m. by someone playing a piano in the Victoria West Community Hall, the resident called city police and reported the incident.

The officer sent to investigate found two sailors from a Liberty ship docked at HMC Dockyard amusing themselves.

The sailors told the officer they had lost their way back to the ship and stopped in at the hall for shelter until daylight.

They were sent on their way with explanations of how to find the Dockyard.

Plywood Plant To Lay Off 80 Workers As Island Employment Picture Darkens

Adverse weather conditions have forced the lay-off of 80 men employed in the 400-man crew of the plywood division of B.C. Forest Products.

W. S. John, acting manager of the company's plywood division, announced yesterday that the lay-off will become effective February 8.

The announcement further darkens the employment picture on Vancouver Island where 15,000 persons have been estimated by the National Employment Service to be out of work, mainly on account of extreme weather conditions prevailing over the past month.

PROBLEMS CREATED

Mr. John explained that the lay-off at B.C. Forest Products is necessary "because the adverse weather conditions have created operational problems in connection with the supply of peeler logs and green veneer from the Cowichan division and seasonal consumption has not developed as anticipated because of the weather."

The company's sawmill division is not affected by the curtailment.

The 80-man group to be laid off is roughly equivalent to one shift in operations of the plywood division.

The plywood division which has been operating on a four-day week basis since last November will return to a five-day week as soon as the lay-off becomes effective.

HOPE FOR CHANGE

Company officials expressed hope that conditions will soon improve so that men being thrown out of work may be rehired at the earliest opportunity.

Mr. John explained that it was through the co-operation of management and employees that continuity of employment has been possible to this date.

"Most other plywood plants curtailed drastically in November while B.C. Forest Products went on a four-day week at that time in an attempt to keep the entire crew at work," he stated.

"Because of the foregoing points a four-day work week is now no longer practical and a realignment of shifts is necessary on a five-day week basis," he said.

"Production will be approximately the same after the curtailment is effected," he added.

SALES FALL OFF

Company officials explained that plywood sales fell off sharply last November and the market hasn't yet shown any signs of improvement.

The forthcoming lay-off has been worked out in co-operation with the plant committee of local 1-118 International Woodworkers of America.

The market for plywood, it was explained, is confined to Canada and is dependent on general economic conditions prevailing in Canada. The company's sawmill division, however, produces largely for an export market in other countries.

Lack of Jobs Causes Concern

Deep concern over the forthcoming layoff of 80 men working in the plywood division of B.C. Forest Products was expressed last night by Ed Haw, financial secretary and business agent of Local 1-118, International Woodworkers of America.

"It is very unfortunate that the plywood industry is unable to keep their people employed," stated Mr. Haw.

"The employment situation is such that those laid off will be unable to find employment elsewhere," he added.

Mr. Haw said "it just doesn't make sense" that a housing shortage exists in Canada today at a time when there is unemployment in the ranks of building tradesmen and workers are being laid off in the plywood industry which can provide materials for badly needed houses.

Trans-Strait Cable To Be Ordered Soon

Cable for the B.C. Electric Company's trans-strait power line will be ordered "within the next day or two," Thomas Ingledow, BCE vice-president and chief engineer said Thursday.

His announcement followed cabinet approval of a Public Utilities Commission decision to allow the BCE to lay the cable which will provide an extra 120,000 kilowatts of power for Vancouver Island.

The company will need 76 miles of the heavy, newly developed cable to complete its four 19-mile underwater circuits.

The cable alone is expected to cost nearly $3,000,000. Total cost of the project is an estimated $5,500,000.

Mr. Ingledow said studies of the route the cable will take across the Strait of Georgia are now under way.

A detailed physical survey, which will be carried out by ship, will not begin until May. It should be completed in June.

The power line is expected to be in operation by mid-summer of 1956.

Public Library Commission

B.C. Group Opposes Book-Burning

The Public Library Commission of B.C. spoke out Thursday against book burning.

A library's job, said the commission, is to help citizens reach an intelligent decision on all issues. That can only be done "when all sides of a question are available."

The commission took its stand in a press release signed by Cecil Hacker of Abbotsford, chairman of the commission.

Other members are Miss Margaret Clay, former librarian of the Victoria Public Library, W. C. Mainwaring, Vancouver librarian Edgar Robinson and Norman Lidster of New Westminster.

The commission's duties are to co-operate with public library boards and associations in the "organization, maintenance and administration" of libraries and to "generally superintend public library activities."

It also makes grants to public library associations and to union libraries for book purchases.

This is the full text of the statement issued by Mr. Hacker:

"In view of the publicity given to certain allegations against the Victoria Public Library in the matter of its book collection," the Public Library Commission of B.C., [illegible] the senior body responsible under the Public Libraries Act for [illegible] administration of the act, feels it is imperative that it state unequivocally its stand on the matter of the censorship of reading material by any individual or group of individuals.

"It is a fundamental principle in the philosophy of public libraries in the Anglo-Saxon world that there shall be freedom to read.

"It is the responsibility of the public library to assist the citizens of its community in reaching an intelligent decision on all issues of public or private concern.

"Such a decision [illegible] reached only when all sides of a question are available."

New Board To Decide On Marshall

The outgoing Victoria Public Library Board yesterday tossed the dismissal of John M. Marshall issue into the laps of the incoming 1954 board.

At a meeting yesterday the board, which decided to dismiss the bookmobile director for alleged pro-Communist sympathies, referred all correspondence on the matter to the new board.

The correspondence consists of a letter from the Victoria Public Library Staff Association, and one from the B.C. Library Association, supporting Mr. Marshall's request for a hearing.

It is understood, however, that Mr. Marshall is hoping to get his hearing in the next day or so before the old board, the one which notified him of his dismissal.

Council Boosts Pay $100

City aldermen approved a $100 a year salary boost for themselves yesterday.

The aldermen receive $1,088 a year, including salary and expenses. An amendment to the Remuneration By-Law, being put through to consolidate salary and expenses for income tax purposes, made the total $1,200 a year.

NANAIMO (UP)—H. J. Platen picked up the phone and asked for help yesterday in getting his car out of a [illegible] bank.

"Yes, one of our smaller tugs should be able to navigate Machleary Street quite easily," he was told. He found out he had called a tugboat firm instead of an auto towing concern.

New Member Amazed At Library Board Plan

The idea of removing any book from the shelves of the public library on the face of it, "amazes" new board member Professor Robert Wallace, vice principal of Victoria College.

PROF. ROBERT WALLACE

In a statement issued after his election to the new board, which goes into office February 1, Professor Wallace said he was quite willing to assume that a well-read public was the best guarantee of a healthy democracy.

"I am vitally interested in the status of our public library because one of my primary concerns is the field of adult education, and there is no doubt that libraries are the greatest single contributing factor to education in its broadest sense," he said.

"The citizens of this community are entitled to be informed on all aspects of all matters and one of the most important sources of such information is books," continued the professor. "Our ancestors struggled to attain the important freedom which we now enjoy and we must be ever ready to protect those freedoms. I will do my best to serve the community as a member of the library board."

Professor Wallace added: "The idea of removing books, on the face of it, amazes me."

Housing Requirements of Museum Big Problem

Village Plans Inadequate, Guiguet Says

The $650,000 Indian village proposed by the tourist trade group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce could never meet the housing requirements of the provincial museum, C. J. Guiguet, provincial museum biologist, said yesterday.

"The average individual, and I'd go so far as to say the average architect, would encounter difficulties in laying out a suitable plan," he said in a letter to the chamber's tourist group.

Wilson Duff, anthropologist of the provincial museum, described the project as extremely imaginative and a stimulating conception.

"It recognizes that a museum doesn't have to look like a cast-off courthouse and what could be more fitting and eye-catching than to use Coast Indian architecture as a motif," Mr. Duff [illegible].

NEED MUSEUM

"We need a new [illegible] and this is the kind of thinking that should be used to make it distinctive of this province," he added.

Mr. Guiguet enclosed a list of museum requirements drawn up some time ago by museum director Dr. Clifford Carl.

"The costs of the building needed to house an operation of the magnitude that the provincial museum and the provincial archives should, and must attain will run into the millions," Mr. Guiguet said.

"The single reason the museum and archives are not tremendous operations at present is due to inadequate housing," he continued.

The authentic Indian village is only part of a much needed, far more ambitious [illegible] highly specialized new provincial [illegible] and archives, he said.

Bob Nelles, head of the planning committee of the chamber's tourist group, which outlined the proposal, said that all the Chamber of Commerce is interested in is the landscaping.

"What goes into it is up to the professional people to decide," he said.

"The province would be expected to pay for the museum part and the City of Victoria and its supporters would be expected to pay for landscaping," he said.

St. John's Ladies' Guild will meet Monday, February 1, 2.30 p.m., in the Fireside Room, Parish Hall.

Little Girl Hat Styles Chosen by U.S. First Lady

NEW YORK (UP)—The nation's first lady, whose hats frequently start new styles, has gone "little girl" in the millinery she's selected for spring, it was disclosed today.

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower has ordered eight hats from milliner Sally Victor. Two of the eight—both new shapes for the first lady—have the turned up brim usually associated with the junior set.

One of the two is what Mrs. Victor called "the little girl roller," a navy straw with rounded crown and a brim about one and one-half inches wide. The brim is faced with pale blue silk flowers.

Also small girl in appearance is a white straw Breton, with irregular brim, faced with white cotton pique.

Mrs. Eisenhower selected the hats last week end, when Mrs. Victor visited the White House, samples under her arm.

Mrs. Victor said an increasing number of her customers ask "What's Mamie getting?" before they make their own selections.

They may buy a design similar to one ordered by the first lady, but never a duplication, because each of her hats is made to order.

Mrs. Eisenhower for the first time has selected a profile hat—one draped to one side so that it covers part of the cheek. She's ordered it in a shiny black straw, called Panamalac. The hat is untrimmed.

She also bought a glorified version of the pillbox, called the "Lantern." This is a brimless hat shaped much like a stack of five or six pancakes. Mrs. Eisenhower selected one in chartreuse straw, with tiny china birds caught in the folds.

Another version of the pillbox is [illegible] straw in deep bright pink. The veil of the same shade has two tiny birds forming a beauty mark.

The other hats are a square pillbox of red pique covered entirely with red and black material resembling mosaic tiles, a small Breton covered all over with tiny strawberries and pale green leaves, and a pink silk Shantung sailor embroidered with straw of a deeper, burnished pink.

National Ballet Hits Financial Snag

Dancer Diana Childerhose of Peterboro, Ont., is one of 45 members of the cast of the National Ballet of Canada which is threatened with dissolution because of a $50,000 deficit. The company has traveled across Canada since 1951 performing in major cities and smaller towns and was scheduled to appear in U.S. cities. The deficit is not due to lack of attendance or to poor management, but to the expense of enlarging their repertoire. Celia Franca, ballerina-in-charge of production, is appealing for donations to continue to perform.—(Central Press Canadian.)

Long-Legs Look Style in London

LONDON (Reuters)—London dress designers are featuring the "long-legged look" in previews of 1954's mid-year fashions.

The London fashion kings opened their spring and summer collections Monday with emphasis on an unbroken line from bust to hem.

Keeping the dropped shoulders and artificial width of the tulip lines they have added full [illegible] bust.

Skirts for daytime, especially on suits, are straighter than ever, though more ease is given for walking by longer pleats set in the back.

Hemlines vary.

Amies and Victor Stiebel, who often make clothes for Princess Margaret, raise them to an average 15 inches from the ground, but Charles Creed, who specializes in tailored coats, suits and dresses, prefers 13 to 14 inches.

Suit jackets are shorter than last season and inconspicuous slit pockets have replaced the outstanding and intricately designed pockets of last year.

Pro-Red Prisoners Leave Korea Camp

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Twenty-one singing, chanting Americans and a British marine who renounced their homelands to stay with the Communists Thursday rolled northward in flag-decked trucks.

And in Tokyo, the United Nations command said officially that nine of the 21 were accused as stool pigeons who betrayed fellow prisoners-of-war to the Communists.

The former Allied soldiers along with 325 South Koreans carried Red "peace dove" banners as they marched from their barbed-wire compound in Korea's bleak neutral zone.

They sang, cheered and shouted charges of imperialism and germ warfare at the West [illegible] word as they boarded the trucks for the trip north.

Communist correspondents said special camps had been prepared for the men at Kaesong and that a gala welcome awaited them.

Fund Drive For New Hall To Be Speeded

The Sidney and North Saanich Community Association will intensify its fund raising campaign for a community hall in Sidney, it has been announced.

Formed last summer, the association has already raised several thousand dollars for the purpose. It received word recently that the former recreation hall on the west camp of Patricia Bay Airport would not be released by the Department of National Defense.

Present plans call for the construction of a new hall. Advice concerning the project is to be asked of those responsible for building the community hall in Campbell River.

Nearly every club and organization in the district has pledged support for the hall.

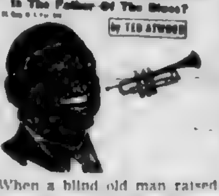
Where on Earth

Is The Father Of The Blues?

By TED ATWOOD



When a blind old man raised a trumpet to his lips for the tired dancers at President Eisenhower's inaugural ball just a year ago, through that trumpet came the sweet, lonely heart of all the blues songs ever written. For the man with the horn was, of course, William Christopher Handy, the composer of what has become one of America's national anthems, "The St Louis Blues."

Although Mr. Handy has never professed to have created the Blues, he is certainly held to be the "Father," for it was he that first gave the Blues the art form in which they were heard in the South.

According to Mr. Handy, it all really started shortly after the turn of the century. He and his small band of musicians doing their best with a version of ragtime, were playing at a dance in Cleveland, Miss. Then, when his band took an intermission, a local trio filled in. "I don't know what it was exactly," said Handy in later years, "but that trio made those dancers roll their eyes and dance like nobody ever danced when we were playing. 'Haunting' was the word for it. I couldn't get it for awhile, then suddenly I did. Right there a composer was born—an American composer!"

Handy had discovered something from those country boys in Cleveland. This new music was primitive, based on only a few notes which were repeated with a throbbing cadence that was wholly native to the Negro. He wrote "Memphis Blues." Other successes quickly followed: The "Jogo Blues," the "St. Louis Blues" (1914), the "Yellow Dog Blues," the "Beal Street Blues," and many others.

Today at eighty, W. C. Handy has lived to see his forty-year old song about that man stealing woman with her diamond rings sell more than two million copies and to hear his name acclaimed around the globe. Unlike many jazzmen who have ended up in poverty and obscurity, Mr. Handy leads an active life, despite his handicap of blindness. He has saved a tidy sum and still tends to his successful music publishing business in the heart of Tin Pan Alley, New York, where he is still affectionately called "Father of the Blues."

cleans and waxes at the same time!

Beautiflor makes other floor care methods old fashioned!

TRY THIS TEST [illegible] Beautiflor [illegible] and see that it really cleans as it waxes.

Why clean your wood floors, then wax them, when Beautiflor actually cleans as it waxes! As you apply it, Beautiflor Liquid Wax loosens embedded dirt, dissolves grease, removes heel marks, stains, even road tar. And the dirt comes up on the cloth. The wax stays right on the floor!

You let it dry a few minutes, then buff. You get a rich, protective, real wax lustre that lasts and lasts, because Beautiflor contains lots of genuine wax.

Why clean, then wax? Do both at once, with Johnson's Beautiflor Liquid Wax!

Get Beautiflor today,
wherever Johnson's Wax is sold!

Big country...
Big bank...
Canada and the Royal Bank match strides on a path of solid progress

This year Canada added another cheering chapter to its continuing story of achievement. New records were written into the statistics of a nation's growth—more people employed than ever before, more wages paid, more capital invested.

The Royal Bank paralleled Canada's course through a year of substantial gains. Our assets reached $2,895,856,189—the highest figure any Canadian bank has ever been privileged to report. Deposits stand at $2,734,644,077, another new record. The bank now conducts over 2,350,000 accounts with Canadian deposit accounts more than double the 1942 figure.

In 1953 new branches were built and others modernized to provide even more efficient service. Royal Bank branches now total over 790—70 of them in foreign countries—each geared to provide banking facilities in step with the needs of all Canadians in this era of exciting national progress.

PW Claims Extended

An extension of time for filing compensation claims by those former prisoners of war who suffered at the hands of the enemy in the European theatre, has been announced by the federal government.

Such claims may now be received by the War Claims Commission until and including March 31, 1954. The old deadline was December 31, 1953.

Former members of the three armed forces and members of the merchant marine, who suffered maltreatment while they were PWs, are eligible to apply.

Application forms may be obtained at the Pensions Advocate's office, Belmont Building.

Retailers' Cabinet Bid Backed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Trade Minister Ralph Chetwynd promised strong support Wednesday night for a bid by the Retail Merchants' Association to secure a new B.C. cabinet minister to represent the province's retailer.

W. C. Mainwaring, RMA honorary president, said retail trade had reached such proportions that a separate cabinet minister was needed to represent the retail trade.

"If your executive will outline what you want in setting up a department of retailers, we'll go to work and try to set up that very thing," Mr. Chetwynd told the annual meeting of the RMA's radio, appliance and TV division.

The minister said B.C. retailers have chalked up the highest per capita sales record of any province in Canada and reaped 70.6 per cent of the province's income last year.

Uncle Wiggily Story - - By Howard Garis

SNOW CAVE

Uncle Wiggily was lost in a big snow storm. The rabbit gentleman, with his pink, twinkling nose, had started from his hollow stump bungalow to go to the office of Dr. Possum. Mr. Longears wanted to get some medicine for Bunty's talking doll, Priscilla, who was ill in her crib with a bad cold.

Dr. Possum was too busy with sick animals in his office to come to Uncle Wiggily's bungalow to give medicine to Bunty's doll.

"But if you come to my office, Wiggy," Dr. Possum had told the rabbit gentleman over the telephone, "if you come here, I can give you some medicine to cure Priscilla's cold."

"I'll come as fast as I can," the rabbit gentleman had told Dr. Possum. But when Uncle Wiggily had gone only a short way from his bungalow to the doctor's office, something happened. The snow was so deep, and the wind blew the white flakes so fiercely into the face and against the pink nose of Mr. Longears that he could not see where he was hopping. He said:

"I am lost! I am lost in the storm!"

But Uncle Wiggily was not afraid. He had been lost in snowstorms before and he had safely found his way out.

"I don't so much mind being lost in the snowstorm," said Uncle Wiggily to himself as he floundered on through the drifts. "But if I do not soon find my way to Dr. Possum's office I cannot get the medicine to cure Priscilla's cold. Then Bunty's doll will be much worse and Bunty will feel sad. I must find my way through this storm to get the medicine from Dr. Possum to bring it back to poor Priscilla! I must find my way out of this storm!"

But that was easier said than done. The wind blew harder. It seemed to howl in the ears of Uncle Wiggily. Sometimes the wind seemed to be laughing at the way Mr. Longears was floundering through the deep snow.

"Whooee-Hoo! Whooee-Woo! Ha! Ha! Ho Ho!" laughed the howling wind.

"You cannot scare me by howling and laughing!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman. "I came out to go to Dr. Possum's office and I am going there to get medicine for Priscilla! You shall not keep me back, you big winter wind and you big flakes of snow! I may be lost, but soon I will find my way out of this storm!"

So Uncle Wiggily floundered and struggled on, pushing and plowing his way through the drifts. He pulled his fur coat tighter around him for the wind was trying to peel it off. Some of the snowflakes sifted down the collar of the fur coat and drifted down the rabbit gentleman's neck. The flakes tickled him, but he did not feel like laughing. Some of the snow perched on the tip of the pink nose of Mr. Longears. But he twinkled his nose extra fast and the snow flakes melted.

Now and then Uncle Wiggily would stop and look about him as best as he could. He hoped he might find the office of Dr. Possum. But it was not to be seen.

"I know the office isn't far from my bungalow," said Uncle Wiggily to himself as he stopped for a moment back of a big tree. The tree kept off some of the wind and snowflakes. "I ought to be at Dr. Possum's office by this time," Mr. Longears thought. "But I am still lost. Perhaps I had better go back to my bungalow and telephone. That's what I'll do! I'll go back to my bungalow."

Uncle Wiggily turned around to go back, but the snow was thicker than ever and the wind blew stronger.

"Oh, dear me hum suz dud and a snow shovel of icicles!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "I am more lost than ever! I can't find my bungalow! I can't find Dr. Possum's office. The storm is getting worse. It is getting colder. I can't see my way through the clouds of snowflakes. I know what I will do! I will make myself a snow cave in the snow and stay there until the storm stops. I will make a snow cave.

Montreal Bonds

MONTREAL (CP) — Trading was active on Montreal bond markets and prices were firmer. Mid-term government of Canadas had advances up to five cents.

On the corporate side, dealings were light and prices were mainly unchanged.

Great Plains Shoots Ahead Among Oils

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were mixed in light trading.

Papers were strong in industrials with Great Lakes up $1. Steels were also strong behind Dominion Bridge's $2 rise.

Western oils closed stronger after a weak opening. Great Plains added $1.35 but most gains were conservative.

Golds were slightly lower.

Base metals dropped as losses ranged to Noranda's 50 cents and uraniums fell behind Lorado's four-cent loss.

Beverages Lower

MONTREAL (CP) — The stock market was on a lower level.

Senior metal shares and beverages led the decline with a solid front of fractional declines. In the steel section, Dominion Bridge closed one point lower at 83.

Senior oils and steels also took part in the drop and miscellaneous industrials was the only improvement.

Enthusiasm Wanes

VANCOUVER — Enthusiasm for oils gave signs of waning as prices eased away from recent higher levels. Exceptions were New Continental, Midwest Gas and Yankee Princess. Home Oil backed to 9.40.

B.C. Power was higher at 18.50 and Capital Estates at 27.75, while lumber and pulps held firm.

Mines were featureless.

President Inspires

NEW YORK (UP)—President Eisenhower's economic report to Congress gave the stock market a new lease of life after some further irregularity in the early trading.

From noon when the message was released, the market picked up in all sections. Prices earlier had been depressed with the industrial average at the low down more than a point.

Trading lightened on the decline and picked up when the new recovery set in.

London Stock Prices

LONDON (Reuters) — The stock market was quietly firm.

In South African gold shares interest continued to centre in the Free State issues and diamond shares again reflected their holdings in this section. Coppers were firm.

Prince Rupert Drydock, Shipyard Soon To Be Sold by Railway

BY HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Anyone wanting to buy a complete ship-building and repairing unit on the West Coast should apply to Donald Gordon president of CNR.

He has announced for sale the Prince Rupert Drydock and Shipyard, built by Grand Trunk Pacific for a trans-ocean service that never materialized.

CNR has been operating the dock for the past four years under an agreement with the public works department which relieved the railway of operating losses. That agreement is not being renewed when it expires March 31.

The successful bidder can take over the plant April 1. It includes a ship shed, pattern shop, power house, machine shop, blacksmith shop, foundry fabricating shop, office building, two launching ways and a floating dry dock that will take ships up to 20,000 tons.

Last year it serviced more than 300 small craft, mainly fishing boats.

B.C. LINK RESTORED

The Great Northern Railway is restoring an old link with Victoria by appointing George E. Pethard as its passenger agent here.

Claiming to be the only U.S. railway to run its own line into Canada—it links Seattle and Vancouver—the Great Northern has not been represented here since 1941 but before that wartime closure it had an office here for forty years.

Indeed Great Northern from 1902 to 1919 owned and operated the Victoria and Sidney Railway Company. It also operated a steamer, the Victoria, and barge service between Sidney and Port Guichon.

Another GN subsidiary, Victoria Terminal Railway and Ferry Company had a mile and a quarter line along the Victoria waterfront.

Mr. Pethard whose office is in the Cathay Apartment Hotel on Douglas Street, says it is not the intention of his railroad to re-enter the Vancouver Island ferry service business.

TEXTILE FIRM LOSES

An operating loss of $270,594 is reported by the Canadian textile firm of Bruck Mills.

Gerald L. Bruck, president, blames the loss on the continued influx of distressed merchandise from the U.S. From a low of 8,750,000 yards imported into Canada in 1950, it is estimated the total of U.S. yarns will be 30,000,000 yards in 1953.

Despite difficulties Bruck Mills maintained a high level of employment during the year and acceptance of the firm's products was good, although market conditions were unsatisfactory.

MAYOR'S LIBRARY NOMINEE LOSES IN VOTE

Volunteer Teachers Help Polio Patients

Part-time teachers are now going to Royal Jubilee Hospital daily to assist young patients recovering from polio with school correspondence courses. Shown above is a volunteer teacher, W. H. Wilson, centre, going over math lesson with iron lung student-patient John Walford, 22, while Nurse Grace Sheppard looks on. Mr. Walford is taking senior matriculation by correspondence. A group of retired teachers generously volunteered to help out last week when the school board turned down an application of hospital authorities for a part-time teacher to guide eager student-patients.

Turmoil In Council

Move Fails To Bar Murdoch But Wallace Replaces Sinnott

BY RAY BAINES

Incensed at suggestions of book censorship, Ald. Robert Macmillan made an unsuccessful bid yesterday to block Ald. Brent Murdoch's appointment to the library board.

The young alderman waged a single-handed battle against the mayor and a number of procedural technicalities, and did manage to get one of his own nominees, Victoria College vice-principal Robert Wallace, elected in place of one of Mayor Claude Harrison's appointees.

Alderman Macmillan charged that Alderman Murdoch did not have public support in view of the reaction to the book-censorship theories.

"I know of people who would like to serve who are a little more broad-minded," he said.

The mayor called his remark "facetious and thoughtless."

THREAT TO DEMOCRACY

Alderman Macmillan said many persons regarded the whole book-burning idea as a "threat to democracy."

He said that in view of what had happened in the past few days, "Alderman Murdoch is not a proper representative."

Professor Wallace topped a secret council ballot to win over lawyer P. J. Sinnott, originally suggested by the mayor. The other successful candidate was Walter Mosedale, also suggested by the mayor. Alderman Macmillan's second nominee, Rev. Lewis McLean of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, was defeated.

Alderman Murdoch received a vote of confidence from City Council when no other member would accept the nomination as library board council representative.

The ballot was taken at the end of the meeting. Earlier there was an incredibly long and confused wrangle over the nominations. Alderman Macmillan was finally allowed time to leave the council meeting and phone several people he had in mind as nominees.

MULLINER DECLINES

Alderman Macmillan had nominated Ald. Frank Mulliner to oppose Alderman Murdoch but the former declined.

"I suppose I could go through the whole council and 'they would all decline,'" Alderman Macmillan said.

"I spent three years overseas fighting the very thing some of the board is standing for," he said angrily at one point. "I don't agree with you (the mayor) or Murdoch in your theories."

After council confirmed Alderman Murdoch's appointment, Alderman Macmillan asked that the other appointments be tabled. A motion to go on with nominations passed, however, 7-2. Still trying to get opposition for Mayor Harrison's appointments, Alderman Macmillan nominated Dean P. R. Beattie and charged the mayor with "trying to push this thing through with your high-handed methods."

ALD. ROBERT MACMILLAN

Mayor Harrison said his remark was "very rude" and "an insult to this council."

At this point Alderman Murdoch, himself now having been confirmed as a member of the board, said he didn't object to the other nominations being delayed for a time to allow Alderman Macmillan time to phone those he had in mind.

At the end of the meeting Alderman Macmillan returned with the names of Professor Wallace and Mr. McLean. He withdrew Mr. Beattie's name after the Christ Church Cathedral dean had declined because of other commitments.

Murdoch Seeks Help of RCMP

Ald. Brent Murdoch said yesterday he favored co-operation between the library board and the RCMP to decide what Victoria Public Library books are subversive.

Confirmed as council representative on the library board (after an attempt to block his appointment had failed) Alderman Murdoch reiterated his previous stand that he opposed "seditious and subversive literature on library shelves."

He said the new board, which takes over February 1, should lay down a policy on subversive books but should not itself choose books for the library.

He said he at no time suggested burning of subversive books.

He also stated he favored a complete review and a hearing on the dismissal of bookmobile director John M. Marshall, recently dismissed by the 1953 board for alleged pro-Communist sympathies.

MLAs Sniff Book Burning

BY T. A. MYERS

The question of "subversive" library books probably will come up in the legislature when the house sits next month.

The subject of book-burning has become such a hotly discussed issue that some MLAs are bound to jump on the headline wagon.

At the centre of any discussion in the house probably will be J. Allen Reid, the Social Credit MLA for Salmon Arm who is best known to Victorians for his attack last year on the B.C. school system.

Besides charging that sex was being taught in the classrooms, Mr. Reid at that time said the educational system was riddled with socialist thought.

POINT OUT REDS

Mr. Reid said Thursday he would tell the legislature that public protests against book-burning and against the dismissal of John Marshall "certainly point out the people who have Communist leanings."

That propably would be enough to ignite a new and even hotter controversy than the sex-in-schools battle.

It could develop during the debate in reply to the speech from the throne, but a more likely time would be when the house gets around to discussing grants for public libraries and estimates for the Provincial Library.

So far the government has shown no inclination to comb the 250,000 volumes in the stacks of the Provincial Library for "subversive" books.

But some of the Socred backbenchers may try to prod the government into action.

Victoria's W. N. Chant, for instance, said Thursday "the matter is possibly something that needs to be looked into."

He added, however, that he "wouldn't press the matter too far. Anything along those lines will have to have discrimination. It can be carried too far."

Mrs. Lydia Arsens said she didn't know "whether there's anything subversive in the Provincial Library or not," but that there should be an investigation.

She said "subversive" meant "inciting to revolution."

"Anything subversive shouldn't be on the taxpayers' shelves or in the schools," she said.

NOT AGAINST ALL

She wasn't against all Communist literature, she said.

"Any other literature whether written by Communists or other Russian citizens explaining their philosophy and concepts of Communism has a legitimate place in the Provincial Library and in the schools."

Mrs. Arsens backed Mr. Reid in his 1953 attack on the schools, and probably would be in his corner again in any fight on subversive books.

Cocktail Bars Due in March

Victoria's first cocktail bars may open for business in the second week in March.

The Liquor Control Board will officially designate the city of Victoria as B.C.'s No. 1 licensing area in advertisements to be published in city newspapers Saturday.

Vancouver, Nanaimo and New Westminster also will be designated as licensing areas.

The liquor board must, by law, give notice that it will consider applications for liquor licenses in ads spaced at least five clear days apart.

That means the second advertisements would appear Thursday, February 4.

After that there is a 30-day waiting period to allow for opposition to new outlets to develop. In that time city council may request a plebiscite or 35 per cent of the city's voters may, by petition, call for a local-option vote.

If city council declines to ask for a plebiscite and if the drys fail to round up 35 per cent of the voters, the liquor board may proceed to deal with license applications on Monday, March 8.

The liquor board wants no unnecessary delay in licensing, so the first licenses probably would be granted promptly after the end of the 30-day waiting period.

A few bars, night clubs, or licensed dining rooms could be in operation by mid-March.

Color Maps Of Province Nearly Gone

Demand for the color maps of British Columbia, distributed by The Daily Colonist, has been so heavy that the available supply of 2,500 has been snapped up in four days.

Only a handful of maps remain in the downtown office and available for mail distribution.

Not one complaint—but hundreds of praising remarks—have been received by the Colonist, which made the maps available as a public service.

More than 7,000 maps have been distributed by the Colonist, using up the total supply in the province.

The Natural Resources Conference is planning to bring the map up to date and print a new supply sometime this year. When this task is completed, the maps again will be available through this paper.

'Misrepresented,' Mayor Claims

Mayor Claude Harrison yesterday charged the press had misrepresented his views on book censorship but admitted he had said he would burn subversive books.

The statement came during yesterday's city council meeting during a heated argument about the mayor's appointments to the Victoria Public Library Board.

A reference was made to press reports of book-burning, book censorship and Mayor Harrison said:

"Most of the representations in the press are incorrect—it's all nonsense."

At the same time Ald. Brent Murdoch called press reports of the library controversy "propaganda."

"The press has built the case up and is playing right into the hands of our Red friends," he said.

Then Mayor Harrison told council:

"I very often don't deny things which are wrong in the press, but now I will tell you the truth. A man phoned me and said he was a Colonist reporter. I presume he was a Colonist reporter—to ask me my opinion about reports of subversive books on library shelves. I told him I would not be agreeable to taxpayers' money being spent on subversive books. When asked what I would personally do with such books I said I would burn them—that's all. That's what all this nonsense is about.'"

Reds Propose World Parley On Arms Race

BERLIN (AP)—Russia surprised the western Big Three yesterday with a proposal for a world conference this year, including Red China, to deal with the East-West arms race and atomic weapons control.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov agreed to sidetrack temporarily his bid for a Big Five conference seating the Chinese Communists in the spring, then offered a resolution embodying the new proposal for a world parley on disarmament.

The resolution was presented while the three western foreign ministers were again demanding that the Berlin conferees go on to the problems of Germany's unification and Austria's independence.

It would pledge all four "to take measures within the framework of the United Nations to convene in 1954 a world conference on general reduction of armaments with the participation of both the members of the United Nations and the non-member states."

Lives Saved By Publicity

VANCOUVER (CP) — Publicity given to the high domestic gas toll in Vancouver was credited with saving the lives of a young mother and her six-month-old son Thursday.

Reve Layton, who became apprehensive when his wife failed to answer the telephone, called police.

Police said a burner was open on the gas stove.

Will Younger Generation Go to Proverbial Dogs?

BY THE JUDGE

For generations every generation has been saying that the younger generation has been going to the dogs.

Along with my generation, the Judge went to the dogs, and now I'm always ranting about this younger generation.

The youngsters have been a favorite whipping boy over the centuries, sometimes with considerable justification. But if each generation has "gone to the dogs" in turn, the state of the nation must now be at a low ebb.

What do you think? This is an open question for all ages and generations. Write to the Judge today on this question:

"Is the younger generation going to the dogs?"

Just to cite one current example, let's look at a recent school board meeting. Here there was some discussion about the advisability of Grade 7 students being in junior high school. The question of these young girls wearing lipstick and becoming modish at such a tender age caused the trustees some concern.

The morals, habits, manners of junior high school and high school students always are a subject of debate.

Let's hear from you teenagers, from parents, from grandparents, aunts and uncles, teachers, philosophers and what-have-you!

Remember there's $37 awaiting in prizes—six daily prizes of $2 and $25 for the letter of the week.

The liquor system still is demanding the Judge's full attention, and nine letters on this subject are printed today on page 2. I will continue to publish the best letters on liquor in the Saturday and Sunday papers. In the Sunday edition, the $25 prize letter will be published.

Then on Tuesday the Judge will switch to the younger generation with the first set of letters on this new subject.

Elderly Men Hurt in Falls

Two elderly men were admitted to hospital with injuries received in separate falls in the city last night.

Albert Ashman, 65, Box 1515, R.R. 3, suffered a head cut which required 20 stitches. He fell through the plate glass door of the Melrose Cafe.

Thomas Cooper, 82, of 119 Superior Street, was taken to St. Joseph's earlier with a cut above his eye. He fell on a city street.

Powder Blast Injures Women

Two More Women Struck by Slasher

MONTREAL (UP) — Police questioned a suspect late Thursday night in the search for the "slasher" who has attacked 13 women in six days.

Two men were picked up, officials said, but one was released after proving he was not in the areas where the razor-wielder slashed his victims' legs.

The second suspect was arrested in the city's theatre district. Police said he was undergoing intense questioning although they found no weapon in his possession.

Authorities believe the slasher may be a convicted rapist. They said several of his victims described him as a "flat-nosed, crazy-looking man" with a maniacal laugh. Several of the women were slashed as they boarded street cars or buses.

The slasher attacked his 12th and 13th victims late Thursday. May Merkle, 21, told police she was slashed on the back of her right leg in the general area where the suspects were picked up. She was taken to the Montreal General Hospital where 15 stitches were taken to close the wound.

Victim No. 13 was Murielle Cosson, 24. She needed 10 stitches at Notre Dame Hospital to close a gash in her right leg. She said she was on her way home from work when a man leaped from a doorway, scratched her on the left side of her mouth with a "sharp instrument" and cut her leg.

Both of the latest victims said they would be unable to identify their assailant.

Earlier, Pauline Blouin, was slashed in the leg as she left her apartment for work today. Miss Blouin, 23, said she was "bumped" by a man as she descended the stairs in the apartment building.

Police said they knew from the victims' descriptions that the first seven attacks were the work of the same man.

Burn Mayor, Librarian Says

CALGARY (CP) — "Why not burn the mayor instead of the books?" asked Calgary's chief librarian W. R. Castell, commenting on the Victoria "book-burning" issue.

Mr. Castell said the Victoria issue was similar to those which had disturbed U.S. librarians for some time.

"It is not one about which Canadian librarians have been very apprehensive," he said, "because we have believed that Canadians are above book-burning and witch-hunting."

He said Victoria had a fine library, one of which the city could be proud and said "If it comes to a choice between the mayor or the library, I think we can safely leave it to the citizens of Victoria."
